Founded 1856.

Patrons:
Their Majesties The KING AND QUEEN.

FOR GOD AND OUR SAILORS.

In the hour of our peril it was the self-sacrifice and devotion of British Seamen which, by God's Mercy, Saved us from Starvation, and made possible our Glorious Victory.

Now that the danger has passed we have the chance of PROVING OUR gratitude.

The Missions to Seamen is the greatest Agency in the World for providing real friends and attractive homes, and, above all, the ministrations of the Gospel, for Sailors in all the principal Ports of the World from London to Hong Kong, and from Cardiff to Buenos Aires, Cape Town, Melbourne. etc.

124 Ports Occupied

Funds are urgently needed, especially for extensions in the great Ports Abroad, and to meet the big increase in the cost of living, and the loss on Exchange in Foreign Countries.

Our British Seamen are perforce Missionaries for good or ill to every corner of the World. They can be the greatest help or hindrance to Missionary work.

Missionary Finance and Adverse Exchange.

THE RIGHT HON. R. McKENNA, Chairman of the London Joint City & Midland Bank, formerly Chancellor of the Exchequer, writes:

"I fear that there is only one of two courses open to the Missionary Societies—either they must succeed in considerably increasing their income, probably to double the amount, for the support of their Eastern Missions, or they must cut down their work, very likely to one-half. The latter alternative is one in which I do not believe British opinion will acquiesce."

The S.P.G. shares Mr. McKenna's estimate of British opinion, and therefore confidently appeals for special gifts to its Peace Thankoffering Fund from which the needs of the present emergency are to be met.

Contributions may be paid through Local Associations or direct to

It was over 25 years ago that I caused samples to be taken of all wines advertised for Eucharistic purposes. Some were found to have much added alcohol, and other extraneous matter. Messrs. Ford & Son's "Oedens" proved the best on analysis. I have since then used no other, and have never found any difference.

LETTERS.—It is requested that ALL LETTERS on the business of the Society be addressed, "The Secretary, S.P.G. House, 15 Tufton Street, Westminster, S.W. 1." Letters relating to Publications should be written separately from those relating to or containing Contributions to the Society.

N.B.—In the case of those Dioceses where there is a Diocesan Treasurer it may be preferred to remit through him. His name and address will be found in the Diocesan Reports.

DAY FOR CLOSING ACCOUNTS.—The Society's financial year closes on December 31. Since, however, it may be difficult for Local Secretaries and Treasurers to get in all the Subscriptions before the end of the year, the Treasurers' books will be kept open until January 16 each year.

REGULAR REMITTANCES ON ACCOUNT.—It would be a great help to the Treasurers if moneys in the hands of Local Secretaries and Treasurers could be remitted at least quarterly, or half-yearly, on account.

A saving to the Society of thousands of pounds a year could be effected if this practice were universally adopted, during certain months of the year the Society is compelled to obtain advances from its Bankers, while large sums are held by Local Treasurers.

Unless remitting "on account" the particulars giving list of names, &c., should always accompany the remittance. Membership subscriptions should be clearly marked as such.

FORM OF LEGACY.—I give to "THE SOCIETY FOR THE PROPAGATION OF THE GOSPEL IN FOREIGN PARTS," the sum of £ ; or* (vide Note), to be applied to the purposes of the Society, and the Receipt of a Treasurer of the Society shall be sufficient discharge for the same.

* NOTE.—Under the Mortmain Acts (as now amended) land, tenements and hereditaments of any tenure may be given by Will to or for the benefit of any charitable use, but must be sold within one year of the death of the Testator for the benefit of the Charity. Personal property of any nature may also be bequeathed for charitable purposes.

I. CANADA AND NEWFOUNDLAND.

The work of the S.P.G. in Canada and the North West Provinces is of very great importance. In this vast region the Society is carrying out with effect the purpose for which it was created; it is providing "for the religious instruction of the King's subjects beyond the seas." We greatly desire to have the power to increase our grants in Canada: we are losing a priceless opportunity which may never recur.

It may be asked why Canada cannot provide the Word and the Sacraments for her own people. The answer is, that she does so. The great towns and settled districts would scorn to ask help of the Mother-Church: but it is otherwise with the immigrants. These are almost all of them poor, and they are pouring in great numbers into the western districts. They have their houses to build, their lands to cultivate, their business to establish, their shops to open: they cannot be expected in these early days to find either money or leisure to form themselves into parishes, to build their churches and parsonages, to pay their clergy. They need help from England during these difficult years. When their parishes are self-established they will shoulder their own burdens. Canada gave freely the best of her sons to fight for the Empire: they have a strong claim on the Mother-country which they helped to save.

The call for young and vigorous priests, and for the funds to support them for the next few years, strikes the predominant note of all the reports that reach us.

From Rupert's Land (£806) the Archbishop writes:—"There is no doubt that large and new fields of work will be opened to us, by the establishment of soldiers' settlements. They must be supplied with the services of our Church, since it is probable that the majority of them are Anglicans . . . They should be cared for by the Mother-Church of the Empire for which they have done such splendid service."

The Province is to keep the centenary of its establishment next September: we offer our most sincere congratulations and our most fervent prayers.

The Secretary of our Society received and accepted an invitation to attend the centenary services and meetings: in view, however, of the need of funds in the present year, he feels that his duty lies at home and he has regretfully cancelled his engagement. The Society will be well represented by two of its Episcopal Vice-Presidents from home.

According to the report from Algoma (£812), about 69 per cent. of the men serving in the war were members of the Church of England, though less than one-quarter of the population belongs to our Communion —thus the contribution of our Church was larger than that of all the rest, Roman Catholics, Presbyterians, Methodists. So many, alas! sleep their last sleep in Flanders. In consequence, by reason of the loyalty of her members, the Anglican Church in this diocese has suffered far more severely than the others. In many of the smaller places almost every Churchman enlisted: financial resources diminished and the cost of living increased. Of the clergy, some were compelled to migrate to richer dioceses, while the students, having gone on active service, were not available to fill the gaps. There are fourteen posts among the missions to white settlers which are vacant at the moment, and the difficulty of getting men for work among the Indians is also very great. Men of power are needed, with eyes to see what the great Dominion of Canada may become. The S.P.G. has maintained its grants, in spite of every difficulty, and a new priest from home is on his way to the diocese. The Sustentation Fund, which will be a great step towards self-support, lacks only £300 of the amount to be raised: when this is in hand, the whole interest of the Fund will be available, and better stipends can be offered to the clergy.

Qu'Appelle (£4,349) sends a similar message: "A large supply of clergy from outside will be needed. Between thirty and forty pioneer missions could be occupied at this moment if new and adequate means were forthcoming."

In the last five years 4,000 miles of railway have been added. The diocese grows rapidly towards self-support. The members of our Communion number 50,000: in 1918 they contributed £33,000 for Church purposes—that is, an average of 13*s.* 2*d.* per head, or about £4 per family. There are now 105 clergy and 86 lay-readers at work. About 450 places receive regular services. There is an immediate need of 16 clergy for established missions, and a further 18 clergy for partially organised new missions. "We must hold the strategic centres," writes the Bishop, "for many years to come. . . . If these new settlers are not provided for, the Church will lose its hold upon them and will never regain it."

At the beginning of the war, practically all the students at St. Chad's College enlisted: the sub-warden is a Chaplain to the Forces in France and has won the Military Cross.

About one-half of the population of Saskatchewan (£702) is non-British—German, Ruthenian, Austrian, Swedish, Russian; scattered about in these districts are colonists from the British Isles, many of them belonging to our own branch of the Church; and it is with these that the future character of the colony mainly rests. If our own people are left untended they will be led to attach themselves to other Christian organisations, and their children will be lost to us. The problem before us is to maintain our clergy in every possible centre of population throughout the diocese, which covers 80,000 square miles—to do this, writes the bishop, "monetary assistance from without the diocese will be required for many years to come." From one parish we have the news that Church work is very much alive. The Church is increasing in influence and grows stronger both financially and spiritually. In the three months, October to December, 20 regular services were held, 20 Sunday-school services, 10 public meetings. The circuit of the parish priest is 52 miles on one Sunday and 40 miles on another in a small car.

In the Diocese of Calgary (£2,765) we have many grounds for thankfulness. The Bishop writes that "the attendance at church and at Holy Communion is good. Sunday-school work goes on well, and there is increased financial support." The Bishop records with satisfaction some new work undertaken in the shape of four Indian mission churches and village schools. Several churches have paid off the debt upon their building and have been consecrated. Archdeacon Hayes is directing a great Anglican Forward Movement of prayer and effort in conjunction with the rest of Canada. We believe that we shall attain our objective, which is £14,000. A story reaches us of one of the clergy in this diocese, whose mission district covers 6,000 square miles, with scarcely a church. In one place a service was held after a lapse of fourteen years. The priest, on one Sunday, has to travel 58 miles each way to take a service, on another, 55 miles. He has travelled 4,847 miles during the year. His report gives us some idea of the adventurous character of his work for Christ. He says: "I have visited coal-mining camps, railway camps, bridge-construction camps, lumber camps. At my own house I had to build my own stable and put up my fences. I have travelled in all weathers and at all temperatures; a couple of Sundays ago I rode twenty-five miles in a blizzard. At one part in the road, owing to snow-drifts, it took me two and a half hours to ride five miles. Moreover, I missed the road in the dark, and as I went along the hill-side I was just on the edge of the cutting, and, when I got off my horse, I rolled down fifteen feet on to the road below me."

A brave and cheery heart is needed for work of this sort.

From Edmonton (£623) the Bishop writes: "Many mission stations are vacant for lack of men, and many new fields of work are awaiting occupation; but no new men are forthcoming from England or from Eastern Canada."

Peace conditions have brought renewed railway-constructions, and new districts are being opened, where our Church should be represented. "Our outstanding need is men, more men, and still more men."

It is with the greatest regret that we note the destruction of the pro-

Cathedral by fire at the end of the year. It is insured, but under present conditions in the building trade the insurance will not cover more than a comparatively small part of the cost of reconstruction. Thus the burden grows heavier and perplexities increase.

Six young unmarried priests are very seriously needed at the present moment. The Bishop appeals earnestly for "young men of good healthy physique to cast their eyes and thoughts in this direction and to answer the call for help." Within the last six days, he says that requests have come from two separate districts which ask for a clergyman. He can only reply, he tells us, that he is "already fifteen men short of the number necessary to do existing work." Surely our young clergy at home will hear these urgent appeals for help. The work is there, waiting for them—difficult, no doubt, and involving some hardships—but it is work which young men should be glad to take in hand for Christ and their fellow-countrymen.

The University of Alberta, in Edmonton, is an established institution with 1,000 students, and the Bishop urges that a residential Church College is much needed.

In British Columbia we have the Bishop of Kootenay (£175) telling us that the work of the Church is being carried on "under very great difficulties." The population in these parts is small and scattered: there are no large cities which can serve as centres of diocesan life and activity. The settlers are only just able to maintain themselves and their families, and the parishes find it very hard to remain self-supporting. The grouping of different parishes has been tried during the war, but the results are reported as most unsatisfactory. The distances are too great to allow of one priest serving two parishes: it appears that to group together two parishes really involves the suppression of one of them. The district is being opened with great rapidity. A new branch of the Canadian National Railway will pass through Armstrong and open up a rich and fertile country. In the southern part of the Okanagan, 20,000 acres of land have been purchased by the Government for the benefit of returned soldiers. The church, a parsonage, and a parish priest have all to be provided. The East Kootenay Country and the Columbia Valley are noted as almost inadequately looked after. The Rev. M. West has been obliged to resign owing to ill-health. "An increase of clergy is imperatively demanded if the Church is to have any real influence and to make a successful appeal to the people. England must come to the rescue."

It is the same cry everywhere. "The labourers are few." Never were prayers to the "Lord of the harvest" more needed than at the present time. One of the mission priests encloses a photo of himself, rowing his horse across a river in a boat.

The Bishop of New Westminster (£255), in his annual report, writes:—"The S.P.G. gives a grant for the work among Orientals in British Columbia. The direction of this work we have now centralised under a Provincial Board, which has control of the work for the whole province. Most of the Chinese and Japanese, however, are living in this city, where we have a most excellent and increasing work.

"The Rev. N. L. Ward, who served eighteen years in China, is the Superintendent-in-charge of the Chinese work, and the Rev. George Lim Yuen, whom I ordained to the diaconate some years ago, is one of his assistants. He also has several catechists under his instruction and a very flourishing night school. Mr. Lim Yuen has been under instruction by Mr. Ward for the past two years for priest's examination, which examination I have recently had him write. He has passed successfully and will be ordained to the priesthood at the next ordination.

"Ten days ago I confirmed three women and one man at the Mission House, and was present at the annual Christmas entertainment, when over 250 Chinese were assembled, and a Chinese play of eight acts was put on by our Chinese communicants. It was a most creditable entertainment.

"The work among Japanese is similarly increasing in scope and intensity. This work is under the direction of the Rev. F. W. Cassillis Kennedy. Our Mission in this city has recently been enlarged at a cost of four hundred pounds, two hundred of which was contributed by the Japanese themselves. We have now two flourishing Missions in the city with night schools and kindergarten; and Mr. Kennedy is as well superintending the work in other parts of the province.

"Since the unification of our work under the provincial board many new fields have presented themselves. All we lack is the money. We can get the catechists, both Chinese and Japanese if we have the means to sustain them."

We have a few notes to add about other dioceses, which the Society assists only to some small extent. Athabasca (£15) is confronted by an enormous influx of immigrants, and the need for greatly increased help is most urgent. In Keewatin, where we make a small grant of £150 to the Bishop for two mission parishes, he reports that one of these (Dryden) is moving towards self-support. The same is true of Caledonia, to which we grant £600. Cariboo (£272) is raising its Endowment Fund, and hopes soon to have its bishop.

Newfoundland (£857) has many problems of its own. We have thirteen of its clergy upon our list, of whom three are honorary. In fact, the diocese is really helping the Society. The grant from our General Fund for 1919 was only £303, to which should be added the income from certain trusts which we hold, and special funds for the diocese, amounting to £546. The diocese has more than repaid us by making a most generous special contribution to our needs of £642, for which we are most grateful. In sending this sum, the rector of Hearts Content writes: "Thirty years ago we were greatly dependent upon S.P.G. To-day we are practically receiving nothing from any outside source, and are giving 10 per cent. of our missionary offerings to the S.P.G. and S.P.C.K., alternately. Last year we made a Forward Movement to support a mission to China. Our total missionary offerings last year amounted to £4,000."

Thanks be to God! Crockford gives 20,000 as the population, of whom 12,000 are members of our Church.

In conclusion, we have only to urge that, in collaboration with other of our Missionary Societies, the S.P.G. has great work to do and a grave responsibility to meet. We need, above all, priests—men of clear-cut conviction and wide sympathy, humble minded enough to learn, ready to adapt themselves to new conditions, who will preach Christ and build up His Church on sane and stable Catholic lines. If some hundred men of this stamp can be found and supported for about five years from home, the whole situation would be changed and our own Church get a hold upon the country which, please God, it would never lose. Hostels for students are needed in certain centres in the West, which would leaven university life with Christian ideals and break the satanic tyranny of the "dollar-outlook." The main policy of our Home Church should be to assist the Canadian Church to maintain at high level the spiritual efficiency of its clergy.

II. WEST INDIES, CENTRAL AND SOUTH AMERICA.

Total Grant paid, £7,970.

Number of Missionaries on the Society's list: European, 82; Native, 4. European: Women, 5.

Our Church in the West Indies is one that has been long established. It has its own Archbishop and Provincial Synod, and is only assisted to a small extent by our Society. The total grant paid in 1919 amounted to £4,703, to which we must add the sum of £3,267, for the increment on various trusts and special funds administered by us to the benefit of the various dioceses. We give a grant from our General Fund to Argentina, but not to the Falkland Islands; and Jamaica, of course, has no need of help.

At the same time, speaking generally, there are great opportunities which we are unable to seize, especially upon the mainland in the dioceses of Guiana and in the immense territory under the supervision of the Bishop of British Honduras. Central America should, of course, be taken over by the Board of Missions of the Church of America, which indeed is in no wise unmindful of its claim upon them. But a duty rests also on the Mother-Church, that of making larger provision for the settlers and merchants and railway servants and engineers of British race, who are found everywhere in Venezuela and Guiana. This need is specially noticed in the report from Trinidad.

The dioceses assisted by the Society from its General Fund may be given here. The reader should refer to an atlas. Setting aside Jamaica, which lies in the centre, we come first to the most eastern group, Barbados and Windward Islands (£325). Just north is the diocese of Antigua, and the Leeward Islands (£920), and to the south-west, close upon South America, is Trinidad, with its responsibilities in the vast territory of Venezuela (£1,118), and British Guiana, on the mainland (£232). To the north-west of the province is Nassau, the Bahamas (£500), and immense stretch of ocean reaching to the isthmus, which we know as British Honduras (£1,607).

We can only deal very briefly with the work which we are privileged to assist in these regions. We note with pleasure the long and interesting reports sent in by many of the clergy whom we aid. Many of them draw our attention to the increased cost of living and to the insufficiency of our grants. Our only reply must be this, that we do what we can. As their congregations increase, so will they learn to depend less and less on what can be sent from the Home-land.

In the Barbados and Windward Islands we assist five priests in St. Vincent, three in Grenada, two in St. Lucia. The Bishop tells us that these men "have very small stipends and could not exist without the grants of the Society." Codrington College, towards which trust funds under the care of the Society contribute £600, is of course a centre of education and Christian influence to the whole province. The pastoral work in these seas is most difficult. One of the clergy in St. Vincent gives us a vivid description of his sufferings in an open boat when he journeyed forty miles to visit a distant part of his maritime parish. He urges the need of a sloop, but does not say who will sail it. Another sends interesting narratives of cases of discipline among his people, and another notices with sadness the moral lapses of some of his people when the soldiers returned from the front. Nearly all reports speak of greater self-support.

From Antigua, Canon McConney notes the enormous increase in the cost of living and the rapid emigration from some of the islands which is the consequence. The Diocesan Synod met at Nevis on June 29. There is a specially interesting account of the Rev. T. W. Lambert's parish of Saba Island. It has about 800 inhabitants, of whom no fewer than 600 are white, the descendants of the old buccaneers. They are most of them sailors, who go off on voyages and are away in some cases two or three years, leaving their wives and children on the island: they return home for a few weeks, paint and repair their cottages, and then are off again once more. They are described as kind and simple-hearted people, who give a hearty welcome to those who come to visit them.

Trinidad, with its great opportunities of work on the mainland, is an important diocese. It has jurisdiction over members of the Church of England in Venezuela. The population of Trinidad and Tobago numbers 330,000, of whom 120,000 are from the East Indies. There are 41 clergy and 36 lay-readers. The Bishop is particularly anxious to develop secondary and higher education: a diocesan school for boys needs extending, and one for girls is projected. The Society was able to give some valuable assistance to this work. In the whole of Venezuela there are only two English priests at work: the population is two and a half millions, and the English-speaking community about 7,000. "The aboriginal Indians, for whom little is done by the Roman Church and nothing at all by any others, are estimated at about one million. Truly the work is great." The Rev. P. Hendrick, priest at Caracas, has outlying stations which he visits quarterly, situated 150 and 300 miles away. His fellow-priest lives 700 miles away; he has charge of two churches 150 miles apart, and makes El Callao his head-quarters.

From Guiana we have little to report. We assist work in Georgetown among the East Indians and the Chinese, also in Demerara, Essequebo, and Berbice. "A lonely outpost" is well described:

"One of the most difficult and romantic of the missions which the S.P.G. helps to support is that to the aboriginal Indians at Eupukari, on the Rupununi River, in the far interior of British Guiana. Those who work in this isolated spot only received papers containing the news that an Armistice had been declared eight months after the occurrence. Mr. and Mrs. Townsend are in charge of this Mission.

"In a letter lately received, Mrs. Townsend writes: 'We have had very few opportunities of sending or receiving letters for the last eighteen months, as the Government Officer does not come up here nearly so often now: we were nine months last year with no mails and no one to speak English to. It is necessary for Mr. Townsend to have a good change—he has worked for nine years without a holiday—and so we look forward to a short time in England next year.

"'We have had a very fair school for the last eighteen months—up to fifty-eight children; of these forty-eight lived entirely with us during school-time, and it meant feeding them—no small matter.'"

The diocese of Nassau, long served by Bishop Hornby, now retired, has received its new bishop, the Right Rev. R. G. Shedden. He served as assistant priest at All Saint's, Margaret Street. He was consecrated in St. Paul's Cathedral on St. John the Baptist's Day: may God's grace rest upon him!

Bishop Dunn of British Honduras was in England for a few months in 1919. He appealed strongly to the Society for a new grant of £200 to enable him to secure a priest from England who would go out as his Archdeacon. The Rev. H. C. Dunn writes from Tela, in Spanish Honduras: "In accordance with the request of the Standing Committee of the diocese, the congregation at Belize is to pay £9 a month towards the stipend of their priest, instead of £6, as previously. The 'United Fruit Company' is giving £5 a month instead of £4. From this time forth we shall be self-supporting. We thank the S.P.G. from the bottom of our hearts for the good start they have helped to give us." He sends a photograph of his wooden church.

The area supervised by the Bishop is truly enormous. Besides British Honduras, which is as big as Wales, he has to care for the members of our Church scattered over the six Republics which make up the isthmus of Central America.

He has to travel thousands of miles, sometimes on horse or mule back, sometimes on bits of railroad in a gasoline motor-car, but most often by boat; up the rivers in canoes or motor-boats, or by sea in sloops, schooners, and steamers. He travels for at least half the year, and wherever he goes he finds West Indian coloured people, British subjects, who love the services of the Church, but often cannot have them. In a few places there are churches, but in all this vast diocese there have only been for many years fourteen or fifteen clergy. Besides these, native catechists are employed to hold services and to teach the children. These West Indian Churchpeople have come mostly from Barbados or Jamaica to seek work in the big companies that trade in mahogany, bananas, coffee, chicle, &c. They live either in settlements on the river-banks, in little palm-thatched huts, built of bamboo or cabbage palm, getting their living by cutting mahogany or growing the produce of the country, or else on the sea-coast, where the business of export employs them in thousands. Stann Creek, built at the mouth of the river Stann in the British colony, is typical of these sea-coast towns. Here, as elsewhere, are to be found West Indian labourers and their white employers, usually English or Scotch in the colony, and American in the republics. The town is unique in the colony in the possession of a railway twenty-five miles long. There are, as a rule, no roads, and but few railroads, and so, God's ministers, catechists, priest, and bishop usually travel by boat.

The Bishop has a little motor-boat, the St. Michael, very largely the gift of his old parishioners of St. Michael's, Quebec, Canada. It is fitted with sails as well as an engine, and can take short sea trips as well as river journeys. An English parish is giving as a part of its War Memorial another such motor-boat, to carry a missionary up and down the old river from Cayo, a bush village in the north close to the Mexican border, to its mouth in the harbour of Belize, the capital of the colony. Like the St. Michael, it is to bear the name of the parish which sends it, the St. Mary, Stafford.

Argentina.—This diocese has its own synod and takes special charge of British colonists in the larger part of South America. As is shown in the Bishop's report, his work is not supported by one Society alone but by three. It is much to be wished that S.P.G. should be enabled to increase its grant in aid, since British subjects abroad are in a very special way its care. The Bishop writes: "Of the various chaplaincies and missions of which this diocese in four republics is composed, the following analysis may be of interest: Thirteen are self-supporting, eleven are assisted. Of these eleven (not reckoning the Chaco Mission to Indians) five are assisted by the South American Missionary Society, two by the Missions to Seamen Society on account of the large proportion of time and work amongst sailors, two by the S.P.G., viz., Camp Chaplaincies, one by a Commercial Company, one by a Commercial Company together with the Diocesan Fund. The Camp Chaplaincy work now constitutes a greater problem than ever, so many of the younger men being absent on military service.

" One chaplain, the Rev. W. J. Sugden, has been doing the work of two or three during the past year. Nevertheless, exceptionally good progress has been made in organising the work and cultivating self-support. Men are unaccustomed, rather than unwilling, to give, and there is little or no sense of corporate responsibility. Also, owing to the absence of coal and difficulty of obtaining wood and the poor financial position of the railways, the train service has been greatly reduced and is less regular than formerly. Yet his summary of work shows that fifty-three camp services have been held, besides a regular monthly service in the railway centre of Junin."

III. AFRICA.

Total grant from General and Medical Funds, including women's work, £35,207.

Number of Missionaries on Society's list: European, 190; Native, 122. Women: European, 53; Native, 9.

It is not unnaturally felt that South Africa can provide for all the spiritual needs of its own white population. This is quite true, though it is far otherwise in Accra: upon the West Coast. But our Church in South Africa, wonderfully alive to its own work and shouldering its own proper burdens, has a far larger brown and coloured population than it can be expected to deal with from its own resources. The need of development in Kaffraria, Basutoland, Zululand, to say nothing of Bechuanaland and Rhodesia, is really urgent. The Church at home ought to enable our Society at least to double its grants in aid of this work. There is a real danger that if we do not use our opportunities we shall lose them for ever. Also in the diocese of Accra, we have a splendid opening for work in the Hausa district, which we are not using. The West African convert has many virtues, but he needs very careful training and pastoral care: the undisciplined negro, who is a merely nominal Christian, is a most objectionable person. There is also great need of industrial schools and better training colleges in this part of the great continent.

Capetown (£700).—It has often been said that few men and women of European origin, born in South Africa, have taken an active part in the missionary work of the Province. This reproach is now being rolled away; many of the priests who have been trained at St. Paul's Provincial Theological College at Grahamstown are to-day working among the native and Eurafrican people. A training-home has now also been started in Cape Town for women missionaries under the care of Miss Miles, whose education and experience in England well qualify her for the work. The need for such women workers is shown by the increased work in the Rescue Home in Cape Town, and also among women who have fallen into the power of the Mohammedan Malays.

The work in Damaraland, lately German S.-W. Africa, is being cared for by Archdeacon Fogarty and a small but devoted band of priests, aided by the South African Church Railway Mission. A good school for European girls has also been started at Windhuk. The Church at home should really take its work in this Province to heart; this new territory brings great responsibility.

Grahamstown (£2,862).—The diocese is responding satisfactorily to the Bishop's appeal to carry more of the weight of the missionary work itself, and the Block Grant has been voluntarily reduced, though at present by only £100. In addition to this reduction, the Diocesan Missionary Association has made itself responsible for the stipend of a fresh missionary priest at East London. It is worthy of note that over £1,000 a year is required from native sources to meet the stipends of the native clergy, an amount which equals about half of the Block Grant from the Society.

It is hoped to build a native hospital at St. Matthew's Mission, Keiskama Hoek. As the mission is very extensive and comprises a large number of villages, and as about 200 students and children are in residence at St. Matthew's in the training-college and schools, the need of such a hospital is apparent. Nursing Sister Kingspark, who carries on medical work under the supervision of the district surgeon, writes: "We have had a very busy year both in the college and in the out-stations. Fortunately, Miss McLaren, a King's Messenger in our nearest town, came to help us, and without such assistance we should have found it impossible to fulfil the needs of our sick people."

At the last meeting of the Diocesan Synod, a Board of Missions was appointed to co-ordinate all the missionary needs and activities of the diocese.

St. John's, Kaffraria (£4,781).—The Episcopal Church of Scotland does a great work in this diocese, and S.P.G. gives a substantial grant. Our medical work is of very great interest and importance.

The Bishop writes: "The war was succeeded by a pestilence, and the pestilence, which has not altogether disappeared, by a drought more severe than any on record. Last year the rain was a failure, and over great areas of country no ploughing could be done. It is impossible to forecast the future. Already report tells of a mother having killed her child in despair of being unable to feed it.

"Otherwise, as we look back during war, we may be thankful that progress has been fairly maintained. But the ground to be occupied is still practically indefinite; progress among the heathen appears to be steady, while on the whole I trust the Church work is being consolidated among the existing converts. . . . Our schools for both natives and Europeans are full, and are commended by the Education Department, but there is considerable financial anxiety and responsibility.

"At Holy Cross Mission, Pondoland East, it is proposed to erect a church in memory of the Rev. R. F. Callaway, at one time director of the mission, who was killed in France in 1916, whilst endeavouring to bring in a wounded man under fire. He had worked nearly twenty years in Kaffraria, where his name is held in the highest honour. Arrangements have also been made to start a hospital at this station, under the Rev. F. S. Drewe, M.R.C.S., L.R.C.P., who left England at the close of 1919. Already Kaffraria is the scene of nearly all the hospitals connected with S.P.G. in South Africa. At St. Barnabas Hospital, Mlengana, Dr. Hannah Irving and Sister Crist are kept very busy. 'Many cases of general ill-health and of phthisis can be dated from the influenza.' It is difficult to teach these people that micro-organisms are more deadly than the 'spirits' which will get into their huts if doors or windows are left open, or the cold which will inconvenience them, if everyone on lying down does not wrap his head up in a blanket. . . . The hospital staff cottage was finished last week, and it was a great joy to move in. The huts were delightful in fine weather, but when it was raining we had to keep moving on to keep dry." Dr. McMurtrie was obliged to resign his post as medical officer at St. Lucy's Hospital, Tsolo, during the summer, but the Wantage Sisters, who are in charge of the nursing, are keeping the work going under the supervision of a district medical officer. "Blind Bengo visits the hospital, and is doing a good evangelistic work. About eight years ago he was brought to the hospital to be cured of blindness after smallpox, but though his eyes were beyond the help of treatment, what he heard in the hospital entered into his heart, and he now goes forth to preach and teach, winning souls to God."

Natal (£3,150).—Our grant in this diocese is mainly needed for work among the Indians. We supply teachers to the girls' school at St. Aidan's, Durban. The sugar industry on the coast brings large numbers of coolies; the Indian population near Durban alone is calculated at 200,000. There is also work among the African natives, especially in St. Hilda's Girls' School, Enhlonhlweni.

In a recent charge the Bishop says: "If the primary purpose of the Indian missions is to evangelise the non-Christian Indians in Natal, of whom there are so many, then we have come to a point when we are perilously near failing to fulfil this purpose. . . . It is to the finding and training of Indian missionary agents—evangelists, teachers and clergy—that the Church must address itself at once." For this reason it is all the more worthy of note that the Society is taking advantage of the considerable openings that exist for medical work among the Indians, both in connection with St. Aidan's Mission, Durban, and also in the sugar plantations. Sister Olive Cole manages to carry on a small hospital in Durban with some assistance from a neighbouring doctor, where she has treated 150 patients, of whom 107 were Hindus, 6 Mohammedans, and only 37 Christians. A second nurse is badly needed for district work, as many requests come from Mohammedans to visit their women in their own homes.

Of the African work the report refers to the three days "Winter School" for catechists, organised by Bishop Roach; and from Enhlonhlweni we hear that St. Hilda's Girls' School is now being reorganised into four departments, to cover all grades, at the request of the Education Department. At this school there is much thankfulness for the newly-built chapel, the altar of which, carved of South African woods by a native youth, has been paid for by the combined offerings of a band of King's Messengers in an English school in the diocese, and the Lenten savings of the girls of St. Hilda's.

Zululand (£2,210).—It is to be greatly desired that our Society should be enabled to do more for this district. Archdeacon Johnson, at St. Augustine's, near the historic Rorke's Drift of the Zulu war, is doing a really wonderful work. He is now in his fortieth year of service, and is most ably helped by Mrs. Johnson. What the Zulus of that part of the country owe to him would be hard to exaggerate. The Bishop reports the ordination of four native Africans to the priesthood and of two to the diaconate. They have all done long and faithful service as catechists.

The war has resulted in a diocesan debt, to meet which the natives have, by special collections, given £300 and the Europeans £120. A fine stone church has been built entirely by native labour at Bivane, and the natives have also been responsible for the first part of the enlargement of the church at Emvungane.

The Bishop reports progress in Archdeacon Watts' European school at Mbabane and in Mr. Cox's coloured school at Empolenjeni, the erection by Mr. Oscroft of new buildings for the Zulu National Training Institution for the sons of chiefs and headmen near Nongoma, in which the Governor-General has shown such personal interest, and although it has been necessary to close temporarily the Normal School at Kwa Magwaza, it is hoped shortly to re-open the hospital at that station, closed during the war owing to all missionaries being on active service. Sister Long died in 1918, her health having been broken by her war service, but it is expected that Sister Mallandaine will soon be preparing for the arrival of a doctor and more nurses.

"The greatest need of the whole diocese is to purchase mission sites," says one report; "we are under notice to leave at two out-stations at Boer farms, and unless I can buy mission sites we shall have to close down in those centres."

Kimberley and Kuruman (£903).—Here again we are able to do far less than we should do. The opportunities of work among the Bechuana are very great. The "passing" of Canon William Henry Rawlinson Bevan, after a life given to the evangelisation of native races, is an event of importance. A B.A. of Trinity College, Cambridge, he went to the Orange Free State in 1871. He set a wonderful example of self-sacrifice and zeal to all with whom he came in contact. He had found the secret of becoming a native in all except in the colour of his skin. May he rest in the peace which he has so fully earned!

The Rev. J. W. Mogg has had a break-down in health at Kuruman. He is an instance of one colonial-born, who has become a devoted missionary. After some years of business life he received his training for the ministry at St. Paul's Hostel, Grahamstown, and it was while there that he became persuaded that it was God's will that he should give himself to the native side of the Church's work.

Bloemfontein (£2,480).—In this diocese the work we support is mainly evangelistic. When the Secretary was there in 1915, a small church for natives was being erected near Bloemfontein, under Rev. E. Rose. A large industrial school for girls in Maseru is served by three women.

The Rev. R. Keable sent from Basutoland a large contribution (the people's Lenten self-denial offering) towards the work of S.P.G. He writes: "All the boys who were with me in France are doing splendidly. Three who read all the controversy (in the East and the West) have asked me to prepare them for Holy Orders, and I have more teachers asking for jobs than I can place. We had a wonderful Easter; over three hundred conversions in Lent, a Confirmation by the Bishop of 220 from here alone, and a first Communion of 115. In 1915 we had 207 Easter Communions, this year 570. In 1915 native Church dues were £28, this year £140."

The Basutoland Missionary Conference of Bishops and Clergy has admitted women workers for the first time and allowed them both to speak and vote. A flourishing branch of the Mothers' Union at Mafeteng numbers over 200 women, who are eager to help in any Church work and walk, at times, twenty or thirty miles to visit kraals.

Pretoria (£3,492).—We welcome home most heartily Bishop Furse, who is called to the diocese of St. Albans.

The "Women's Work" is of special importance in this diocese. In Johannesburg there is a hostel for native girls in domestic service, and St. Agnes' Industrial School (Rosettenville). We have a small school at Pietersburg, and in Pretoria two of our ladies teach in the coloured school of "The Good Shepherd."

No reports have been received on the general work of the diocese, but we gather from various sources that the African Christians are contributing well to the work, although they are feeling the increased cost of living almost more than any other section of the community.

Bishop Fuller, late of Lebombo, is shortly taking charge of the mission work in the Pietersburg district, and requests are coming from many outlying stations for workers.

In Johannesburg, at the desire of the Bishop, missionary committees are being formed, and lady members help the missionaries by money and gifts, sometimes also by visits to the native ward in the hospital, a welcome sign that the unsympathetic attitude towards missions is changing. But the work among women on the Reef has been curtailed for lack of workers.

Southern Rhodesia (£2,028).—The Bishop writes as follows: "Unquestionably at the present time the country is prosperous. Land is being taken up, and it seems as if we may have to face a considerable extension of work in country districts. Hitherto our European work has been chiefly confined to towns and mining centres. It appears as if, with the growth of population, much more itinerating work will have to be done. . . . For many years the native work has been growing very rapidly and extending itself, and it is, I think, clear that we shall now have to pay the penalty for the inevitable lack of supervision which has been the result of this rapid growth. Consolidation, rather than extension, is now our most pressing need." The Bishop writes also that the outstanding event of 1919 has been the ordination of the first native deacon, Samuel Muhlanga, who had served for many years as a catechist before he went to the College of the Resurrection, Johannesburg, to prepare for Holy Orders.

At Penhalonga the women's work has been placed in the hands of the Sisters of the Grahamstown Community of the Resurrection, who already have branch houses at Bulawayo and at Rusape in this Diocese.

Lebombo (£1,893).—Encouraging reports come from this diocese of conversions among the women and girls at Masinjeni, in Chopiland. But the people are still very superstitious, and dread of witchcraft has occasioned quarrels among the congregation at Hlamankulu.

The insistence of the Portuguese Government that teaching in the schools shall only be given in Portuguese, or the native language, presses hardly on the workers. There is also a shortage of priests, and a still greater need of funds.

We note with regret the resignation of Bishop Latimer Fuller, who intends to devote himself once more to his old work among the natives in the northern parts of the diocese of Pretoria. His successor is not yet appointed.

In the diocese of George (£88) the work supported by the Society is very little, but we look forward to greater undertakings in this new sphere.

From Sierra Leone (£370), where Archdeacon Farquhar is doing such good work in connection with the Pongas Missionary Association, we have had no report.

The South African Railway Mission (£265), which works in nearly all the dioceses of the Church of the Province of South Africa, under the energetic leadership of Canon Thornley Jones, maintains its good work under very great difficulties, and ministers the Word and Sacraments to many who would otherwise be altogether without them.

Madagascar (£5,827).—Bishop King has been succeeded, as Bishop in Madagascar, by the Ven. George K. Kestell-Cornish, eldest son of the first Bishop of the Island, who has been working in the diocese since 1882, having been Archdeacon since 1901. On December 3, 1918, Archdeacon McMahon died on his mission station at Ramainandro, after working there devotedly for thirty-three years; he was one of the best Malagasy speakers on the island, and had a singular understanding of the native character. At the end of the year only five European priests were left on the island, and a very strenuous time they had. Three large districts were left without a resident European, and were cared for by the three priests stationed in Tananarive, two of whom were fully occupied during term-time in their educational work. Fortunately two recruits have been found in the Rev. A. C. Jackson, who is now on his way to Madagascar with the Bishop, and the Rev. C. W. C. Redman, who hopes to sail shortly.

The Bishop writes: "It is a matter for great thankfulness that, notwithstanding the shortage of European priests throughout the mission, the work has been successfully carried on by the Malagasy clergy.". . . The Synod will, no doubt, meet before long: its Standing Committee is the central governing body of our Church in that island. The High School, where our boys are prepared for the Government teacher's diploma, did well in 1919, but the Rev. Jules Pochard, who works most indefatigably in this and in other ways, is suffering from his eyes and is ordered to rest.

"During the year Madagascar was visited by an epidemic of Spanish influenza, and in some parts of the country whole families were carried off and the mortality was terrible. Of one of our Malagasy priests, who was ordained by Bishop King at Tamatave on his very last day in Madagascar, Mr. Swann writes: 'He was priest, doctor, nurse, and undertaker all in one, and on one occasion grave-digger too, for the heathen relations of the sick and dying were in such terror of the new disease that they deserted them.'

. . . . . .

"The interesting work in the north of the island is still being carried on by Malagasy priests, natives of the district. Two of them have been working there for some years, and two others were ordained by Bishop King on his last Sunday at Tananarive. An earnest European missionary is badly needed for the superintendence of this district."

The work among women and girls has gone quietly on its way, but owing to illness and the absence of workers on furlough there is little to chronicle.

Mauritius (£1,042).—We chronicle with regret the resignation of the Right Rev. F. A. Gregory. He is succeeded by Right Rev. C. H. Golding-Bird, who resigned his bishopric of Kalgoorlie for reasons of health. He has serious financial difficulties before him, and finds his European staff much depleted. The war has told its tale here as elsewhere: men have come home and their places have not been filled. We wish him all possible joy in his new work. We are not able to give a detailed report of the work which we assist, as none has come to hand.

St. Helena (£265).—The Bishop writes in his annual report that he has himself had to take charge of St. Matthew's parish, which had otherwise been vacant during the year. Canon Porter, after twenty years' service in the island, has now resigned after a break-down in health.

Of the other islands there is news that the Bishop was able to visit Ascension Island in May and minister to the garrison and telegraph staff. Tristan Da Cunha was visited during the year by H.M.S. Yarmouth, whose chaplain gave Holy Communion to the people and made the most of the short time at his disposal. Unfortunately, this visit was carried out while the Bishop was still in correspondence with a priest who would go and live with the people, but the plans could not be matured in time. An interesting account of this visit appeared in the April number of The Church Abroad.

Accra (West Coast) (£2,840).—The chief event in the history of the Diocese in 1919 has been the arrival of Miss Cooke and Miss Happer to resume work among women and girls, which, owing to circumstances beyond the control of the Mission, had fallen into abeyance for almost ten years. We have now only made a beginning, and are still without any means of receiving girls as boarders. How this shall be done is exercising our minds greatly, the alternatives being (a) the establishment of our own educational system for the girls of our Mission, (b) the establishment of hostels in connection with the Government schools. In any case, it is certain we shall never uplift Gold Coast life without carrying women along with us in social improvement and religious enlightenment.

During the year we have opened a new school for boys at Accra, and such accommodation as we were able to supply was taxed to its utmost immediately. There are said to be 2,000 boys in the town of Accra asking for education, for whom no places are available in the present schools. The Gold Coast is a country of enormous natural wealth; it has now entered upon a stage of rapid development of its resources; those who are educated can, and do, enter into great material prosperity immediately. What we have to consider is whether we ought not to concentrate all our energies and everything we possess upon the presentation of religion pure and simple to correct the resulting materialism. We are fully alive to the fact that the evangelists of the people must be African in the long run, and we never lose sight of the task of training such suitable material as we can lay hands on for this work. Our native clergy are now three in number, and vocations are not lacking. The Bishop, Archdeacon Morrison, and Rev. R. Fisher were all at home on furlough for a part of 1919.

IV. INDIA.

Total Grant paid £102,311.

Number of Missionaries on Society's list: European, 108; Native, 169. Women: European, 170; Native, 25.

A few things stand out in the reports in strong lights amid a mass of details, which are common to all though varying according to the districts.

The first thing that strikes us is the wonderful way in which the missionaries are guiding, developing, restraining the national spirit which has found birth in the Indian Church. The Empire will never know what it owes in this direction to these men and women, nor shall we ourselves realise the debt till we see the strong full Catholic Church in the Kingdom of our God. One other remarkable trait running through practically all the reports is the measure of self-support and self-government that has already been attained by the Indian Church—and the high hopes that are cherished for the future.

With regard to our medical work, it had been hoped that fresh volunteers would be rapidly forthcoming, who could be sent out to take the place of those who had to come home; but this proved a very much longer process than had been anticipated. Nursing sisters were for the most part tired out after their war work, and although very many offers of service were received, it was not possible to send out any new nursing sisters before the autumn, while practically no fresh offers have been received from doctors.

Speaking generally, very little actual reconstruction has been possible, and in many places overtired missionaries are still holding on without any immediate prospect of relief. The difficulty has further been increased by the very great stringency of the financial position. The loss on exchange is the really great difficulty which has to be faced. The Society has drawn heavily on its resources to meet the deficiency, and yet, in spite of this, great hardship has been endured by many of our missionaries.

Calcutta (£6,172).—The chief event in the Metropolitan See, and indeed in all India, is the "passing" of George Alfred Lefroy on New Year's Day. Few men have devoted their lives so ungrudgingly to the spread of the Kingdom of Christ. He went to India, from Cambridge, in 1879, and worked in the Brotherhood at Delhi until 1899, when he was consecrated Bishop of Lahore. In 1913 he became Metropolitan of India, and in 1918, after a year of suffering heroically borne, he resigned his See. Like eight of his predecessors, he had the joy of dying at his post. The Indian Church is the poorer for his loss, albeit those who worked with him are the richer for his life. His evangelistic zeal, his skill in government, his power of developing the resources of the Church, not less than his wonderful gift of friendship, endeared him to the whole Empire.

His place has been taken by Foss Westcott, Bishop of Chota Nagpur —a name known and honoured wherever the English tongue is spoken. He has the statesman's mind, as is shown in his handling of the Lutheran missions in his former diocese. In his first message to India he reminds us that "membership in the Church, which carries with it no active work on behalf of the Body, is a contradiction in terms."

The movement towards what may be described as national Christianity increases in force day by day throughout all India, and not least in Calcutta. In 1912 the Diocesan Conference of Missionaries passed the following resolution :—

"This Conference would emphasise the principle that the work carried on by the Foreign Missionary Societies should be gradually transferred, as opportunities offer, to the Indian Church, and that suitable plans and modifications of existing organisations should be adopted, wherever necessary, so that this principle may be carried out by missionary bodies."

The subject is daily increasing in importance, and a satisfactory advance is demanded by the spirit of the modern age. Already the voice of discontent is heard from many sides. The scheme for political reforms, with its transferred and reserved subjects, is whetting the appetite for independence and freedom of self-expression in Indian Christian young men. The Church cannot surely lag behind the State. There is an element in the Indian Christian community that even chafes under the restrictions imposed by the Calcutta resolution. The principal of a theological college tells us that his students are impatient of any delay in transfer from the Foreign Mission to the Church, and that the words of the Calcutta Conference resolution greatly irritated them. The words that irritated them evidently were: "gradually" and "as opportunities offer." Our young theologians seem to want entire autonomy at one step, or, in Indian political phraseology, an immediate grant of Home Rule and Swaraj in the Church. Sober minds will, however, be willing to wait, and will gladly welcome the caution and sanity implied in the irritating words.

Closely akin to this question of a free development of an Indian Church is that of self-support. In some ways, the Church appears to lag behind what might be expected of it. The Rev. M. L. Ghose, priest-in-charge of the Indian congregations of the Sunderbun, draws attention to this weakness, while he writes hopefully of the future. "If the people are taken into our confidence in the matter of the income and expenditure of our churches, they come forward heartily and do all they can." The Rev. N. H. Tubbs discusses "the possibility of gradually decreasing the S.P.G. grant to Christian congregations so that they may become self-supporting." It is high time that the diocese took the place of the mission in the minds of the people. Indian Christians will never subscribe adequately to an English society; whereas they may soon learn to give to their own diocesan Church Fund.

Bishop's College, Calcutta, has been reconstituted as a Theological College for all India: the new principal is the Rev. N. H. Tubbs. Of the eighteen students who assembled for the first term, thirteen have University degrees. One of its students, Mr. W. H. Hama, has just been ordained. Bishop's College School, which stands in the college grounds, remains a diocesan institution. Save for a grant to the Diocesan Girls' Boarding-school, there is no women's work done here in connection with our Society.

Chota Nagpur (£15,223) has celebrated the jubilee year of its mission; it has also, as is recorded above, seen its Bishop depart. The Rev. Alexander Wood, for twenty-one years head of the Scottish Episcopal Church Mission at Chanda, was consecrated Bishop on December 7. He possesses proved powers of organisation and unwearied zeal: we hope for great things.

The task of rendering aid to the Lutheran Mission churches and of superintending their schools, which Bishop Westcott, aided by our Society's special grants, so courageously and sympathetically took in hand, has now come to an end. Hopes of their amalgamation with ourselves have been disappointed, but "seeds have been sown of friendliness and mutual understanding that are bound to produce a harvest of closer union in the days to come." From Ranchi, Canon Cosgrave has returned to his old Diocese of Durham, leaving an enduring mark on the Boys' School; he has been succeeded by Rev. Richard Gee, formerly Principal of Bishop's College, Calcutta.

St. Margaret's School, Ranchi, has become a High School—an event of importance in the history of female education: Miss M. G. Hughes has just joined the staff. The famine has made it difficult to maintain the diocesan boarding-schools.

Rev. J. C. Forrester, Head of the Dublin University Mission, Hazaribagh, notes "a stirring of the waters," and that hearts are being touched by the Gospel message. The college and schools have flourished in spite of the shortage of staff. Several members of the mission are on the governing body of the new University of Patna, a position which affords them unique influence in moulding the educational ideals of a large province. Influenza, which devastated many districts in 1918, has left a sad legacy of tuberculosis, and this at a time when the medical staff was depleted. The report of the diocese closes with a statement of grave financial straitness, due to the loss on exchange.

Lucknow (£11,127).—The year has been one of many anxieties and of some strain. Canon Fisher in Cawnpore continues the work on lines laid down by the present Bishop of Lucknow and his brother the Metropolitan, who visited his old station last November and received the warmest of welcomes. No addition to the reduced Brotherhood staff has been made since 1912; there are four vacancies. Christ Church College continues to hold its own, though the Arya Samaj has recently established a new college in opposition. Two members of the Brotherhood, Rev. M. S. Douglas (principal) and the Rev. E. W. Ormerod, have charge of this work. There are 120 students in the three hostels.

The evangelistic work goes happily. Rev. T. E. Johnson, just home on furlough, reports that the converts under instruction in the Moradabad district from the labouring caste have increased from 74, a year ago, to 140. Boys newly won for Christ have filled our Mission Boarding-school at Rurki; and our girls, the new school at Pak Bara founded for them by Miss Frere. Rurki itself is in charge of Rev. J. B. Frank, an Indian priest. Two of his fellow-workers were ordained deacons in 1919.

The Rev. A. Crosthwaite hopes to build little chapels in every village where a mass movement is in progress: they will be constructed on the lines of a village mosque, with a good-sized courtyard and a raised platform at the end and large arches leading into it. The worshippers will thus be in the open air—a good tree providing the needed shade. From Moradadad we hear of Anglo-Indian girl-guides, and of camp evangelistic work in many directions. The little women's community, called "The Fellowship of the Heavenly Way," founded by Miss Frere, has received a new member. At Rurki, an Indian lady-worker is teaching in some of the houses of the highest caste; the work at Banda is under an Indian deaconess. As we go to press, we hear with infinite regret the "passing" of Miss Frere.

In Cawnpore, efforts have been made to reach the non-Christian upper classes—a work of much difficulty. The School of the Epiphany for Christian girls has five of its old pupils on the teaching staff, and the municipal grant has been doubled. The financial anxiety of maintaining over 100 boarders is very great.

There is important medical work in the diocese, though it has been somewhat in abeyance during 1919. St. Catherine's was closed for lack of staff, the only medical missionary remaining being Nursing Sister Aldrich. "She has done a truly wonderful work at Pak Bara. Her dispensary, we are told, has grown constantly in popularity; she has sometimes as many as two hundred patients a day." In the autumn Dr. Kathleen Dawson returned from furlough with a new recruit, Dr. Beatrice Adderley, to re-open the medical work; Nursing Sister Ellen Martin went with them for one more year's work. Our doctors received a very warm welcome from their old patients, who came in streams with offerings of fruit and flowers. The Hospital needed some alterations and improvements, which were effected before re-opening.

Lahore (£10,097).—This diocese has two strong centres of work, assisted by our Society, Delhi, and Lahore.

In Delhi, the Cambridge Mission issues its own Report, and only a brief notice is needed: it does most important educational, social and evangelistic work, comprising as it does the Cambridge Brotherhood (of which Rev. F. J. Western is head) and the women's community of St. Stephen. With the death of the Rev. H. C. Carlyon on April 6—just three months after that of Bishop Lefroy—the Brotherhood lost the last of its old leaders. Lefroy, Allnutt, Carlyon were the "Gurus" of the Mission—an expressive Hindu word which combines the ideas of reverence and personal attachment with that of leadership. Their ideals and traditions are left as a rich inheritance to their successors. The staff is sadly in need of reinforcement. Rev. J. J. Hughes has left, and Rev. A. Coore has had to be recalled from his country work to the pastoral oversight of the Church in the city and its surrounding villages.

In educational work, the college has been able to maintain both its staff and its educational level. The Rev. N. G. Leather has left it to take work in Bengal, and has been replaced by Rev. S. H. Thomas, a new probationer of the Brotherhood. The college is under Professor Rudra, the High School has Mr. Mukerji as its headmaster, and Rev. J. C. Chatterji is able to give half his time to the school and half to St. Stephen's parish. Rev. W. T. Williams replaces the Rev. A. H. Tilt at the Boys' Boarding-house. There are matters of great urgency which need attention, notably the "industrial education of Christian boys," and "the relation of the college to the projected University of Delhi."

In Delhi we also assist educational work for women, for which we may be thankful. The Bikanir Industrial Girls' Boarding-school is for children of low caste, and the Victoria Girls' Boarding-school for Christians. There is also a fine school, the Queen Mary Day School, for young Indian girls o high caste. The details will be found in the report of the Cambridge Mission. The following ladies have returned after furlough: Miss Gould (head of the women workers) and Miss A. John; Miss Bruford, a new evangelistic worker, has lately arrived in Delhi.

The Australian Board of Missions has asked the Delhi Mission to prepare women workers to act as their missionaries to the Indians settled in the South Sea Islands. One of these is already there in training.

Rev. A. Coore, of Karnal, writes about the mass movements, that the tide of conversion is still flowing, but tends to grow shallower as it spreads. But some useful lessons have been learned from past movements of the kind, and the people are being told from the start that they must give. Each village which asks for a teacher is expected to build the school. The catechists in charge of the work come to Delhi from time to time for three weeks' teaching and devotion. They are keen on learning and make the most of their opportunity.

The medical work of the Society in this diocese is important: there are hospitals at Delhi, at Karnal, and at Rewari, places fifty miles apart. The number of in-patients at Delhi has risen to over 100. Dr. Bazely has been in charge during Dr. Franklin's furlough, assisted by two Indian or Anglo-Indian graduates. Dr. Enid Sanger-Davies has joined her, replacing Dr. Dorothy Scott, who is at home on furlough. It is impossible to record other changes in the staff. Great attention is paid to the training of Indian nurses, and at the examination by the United Board for Mission Hospitals, four first-class certificates were obtained, one second, one third. Some improvements are mentioned, notably a roof-ward for tubercular patients, and two detached "cottage wards," where the sick person can have as many members of the family as he desires to stay with him. Towards the end of the year the in-patients' department at Karnal was closed; the out-patients are dealt with by a sub-assistant surgeon and four Indian nurses, and there are a few cots ready for emergency cases. At Rewari, on the borders of Rajputana, the hospital is full, and the out-patients are many. Mrs. Cowie is building up medical work at Rawal Pindi.

At Lahore there is the long-established Deaconesses' Home. These ladies are connected with the Cathedral and work mainly amid the Anglo-Indian community. St. Hilda's House is the head-quarters of six deaconesses and from eighteen to twenty other workers: they teach in the schools or take care of children in homes and orphanages. The Warden speaks of "the increased number of women and children of British soldiers." Each of the stations should have at least two deaconesses.

Bombay (£17,616).—We find an increased spirit of independence and of self-support in the Indian Church. The Tamils give cheerfully to their Pastoral Fund, and collections in their churches meet most of the cost of their upkeep. They contribute towards their village schools and do what they can for the education and moral improvement of their non-Christian neighbours.

In the city itself, a hostel has been started for Christian boys who speak Urdu. For the pastoral work, a capable and zealous Indian priest is much needed. The Deaconesses' House is already making itself felt in the diocese, and does much for the English-speaking people as well as for the Indian community.

Ahmadnagar is a strong centre. The wages of the unskilled labourer have increased in a way undreamed of in the days of old. To some extent this has kept the people from suffering from famine and the rise in prices, but our schoolmasters, catechists and clergy have found it hard to live. Canon King notes "that the number of village schools has decreased and the number of Indian clergy increased. There are at present five Indian priests and five deacons at work in this district. By the end of 1920, it is believed that the local church funds will pay the salaries of two deacons; but the scale of pay must be raised to meet the new conditions if we are to secure a constant supply of Indian clergy. It must be remembered that these men, who are paid the wages of a mill hand in Bombay, are married and have families to keep and educate."

With regard to the schools, the Rev. H. Heaton writes about his boys at the S.P.G. High Schools. The Chitpavans, whom he mentions, are a sect of Brahmans, who in the Rowlatt Report were described as being responsible for nearly all the revolutionary crime in the Presidency. He says:

"Speaking for the Chitpavan boys whom I teach, I can testify that they fully maintain the reputation of that sect for mental acuteness and revolutionary sympathies. I set and correct the weekly essays in the two upper standards, and no matter what the subject may be, there is generally at least one boy who brings in some allusion to British injustice, racial prejudice, the need of independence for all countries, &c.

"As the Home Rule movement progresses in India, boys and young men of this type are likely, I think, to become less and less ready to give a favourable hearing to the Christian message, not so much because it is Christian, as because it is in their opinion British. But in Mission High Schools they have to listen, more or less, to Christian teaching."

The women's work in Ahmadnagar is of very great importance, and its influence is felt throughout the diocese. It provides training for teachers and Bible women, and aims at producing, under God's guidance, that solid and devout Christian character which will enable Indian women to work in close fellowship of spirit with their English sisters. Miss Jane Latham rendered splendid service in the famine-relief camp during the riots in Bombay, and was awarded the Kaiser-i-Hind Medal of the 2nd class. The famine has crowded the schools: the Widows' Home at Kolhar has been almost overwhelmed. Industrial work is being organised in this place, which should enable the Home to become self-supporting in a few years' time.

Rev. J. Loughton writes from Kolhapur about a criminal tribe called the Mangs: "A short time ago several of them were brought into Kolhapur charged with housebreaking and theft, and were imprisoned pending trial. The catechumens, who were their relations, came eighteen miles to visit them, calling each time at my bungalow. They wished to impress upon me that they had not forgotten what they had been taught, and sitting down on the verandah, they recited the Ten Commandments in the shorter form, the Lord's Prayer and the Creed, and asked that they might be baptized at once; but I told them that some months must elapse before their baptism, in order that we might be more certain about their convictions, and that their conduct might be tested."

In connection with this, Canon Rivington writes from Hubli that work amongst the depressed classes is not eyed with favour by some of the Indian Christians ; they allege two reasons for this attitude. First, they say that a large influx of uneducated half-civilised people is no advantage to the Christian community ; and secondly, they fear it may cause the Hindus to refuse them the social intercourse and friendship which they prize. This attitude of mind must be combated, as it is alien to the Spirit of Christ. Women's work in Hubli is developing most encouragingly:

St. Augustine's Hostel is doing valuable work, for though the number of boys is at present small, it enables them to live under Christian influence while attending Government or aided schools, and it also affords a training-school for the children of Christian parents. There is also a hostel for young men who have been recently baptised. There are railway work-shops close at hand. These are drawing Telugu labourers to the district. Many of them are demanding religious instruction and baptism.

Madras (£17,603).—This diocese has also been visited by cholera and influenza, and the people are in sore straits from poverty due to the rise in prices. Cholam, the staple food in country places, is between six and eight times its former price, and rice is also very high. The report of the Telugu Mission draws attention to the dire needs of our missionary agents : " This year we are face to face with the most critical situation in which our Mission has ever been placed, and we are forced to ask ourselves whether the work can go on at all on its present scale, or whether we shall have to curtail in all directions. . . . Our school-teachers, clergy, catechists and medical men are drawing salaries in most cases much below what they might have earned in other service, with the single purpose of ministering to their own people and spreading the gospel among their fellow-countrymen."

And the evangelistic movement goes on apace in the Telugu country, and Indian clergy and catechists refer to many villages which are welcoming their preaching bands and are asking for teachers. Yet, in spite of manifest progress, the Nandyal district has a decrease of 352 in the number of its adherents, who number at present just over 24,000. It is due to the number of deaths. In the girls' school there were forty cases of sickness, and a most valued school matron has passed away. " Her loss," Miss Baker Wilbraham writes, " is a very real one, for she was a faithful, devoted and humble-minded Christian. Those who saw her face after death will never forget the unearthly radiance and joy which shone forth from it." At the same time, all the Bible-women and a nurse, as well as Miss Wardle, were taken ill. " It was a six-weeks that none of us will ever forget."

We are unable in this report to do justice to the evangelistic and pastoral work of the diocese. We should have been glad to receive a report from Bishop Azariah, of Dornakal, our devoted Indian bishop. Canon G. Herbert Smith comes home after forty years spent in missionary work, of which by far the larger part has been given to Southern India. St. Paul's High School, Madras, needs a capable and wise educationalist, either priest or layman ; it is at present supervised by Rev. H. J. Edmonds, who may be called away by the Government at any moment to a chaplaincy. The fact that strikes one most in this part of the Church's work is the large number of Indian clergy.

In speaking of our women's work, we have settlements in Madras City, at Trichinopoly, at Nandyal, at Bangalore, and at Tanjore. The three girls' schools at the first three places mentioned are too far apart for much co-operation or interchange of pupils. Nandyal represents the country work. " It is good to see the school-work going forward. Since June, four out of our staff of eight teachers are our own old school-girls. Though they have been through their training, they are young and inexperienced, and need a good deal of help." Our prayers will be with Holy Cross School now, at last, in new buildings.

Trichinopoly, with its training-class for women, represents another side of educational work. "Most of the girls trained as teachers turn out well, and in these successes those good traits in the character of Indian women, infinite patience with love for the little ones, and quiet dignity and self-confidence, are conspicuously shown." This school has not yet reached the High School standard, and has to allow its pupils to finish their education in Nonconformist schools. St. Ebba's, Madras, on the other hand, which teaches to the matriculation standard, is able to retain its pupils for longer. Here again we note the satisfactory report on the teachers: "We have an exceedingly helpful and loyal staff, six of whom are our old girls returned to us after training. We are looking forward to having two more of our old girls on the staff next July." Miss Jemmett has returned home, having resigned the Headship of St. Ebba's. Miss Dale will take her furlough this year. New workers are replacing those who have retired. Miss Schubert has gone to St. Ebba's, where she is to be joined next September by the new principal, Miss Beatty. Miss Cutcliffe has gone to Nandyal.

In Tanjore we have the record of zenana work. Work of this sort is also carried on in Trichinopoly and Madras.

In Trichinopoly Boys' College, which has a special grant of £1,152, not included in the diocesan grant mentioned above, Rev. A. F. Gardiner, the principal, and Rev. W. H. M. Lonsdale are doing a work of very great value. The number of students increases and has outgrown the accommodation. Hindu pupils pay the usual fees, but Christian boys, who are drawn from the poorer classes, are educated free of charge. About one-quarter of the students are Christian before they enter in this school, as in others of its class, practically no new converts are made. But its influence is great, and its old pupils are found in all parts of Southern India. It is believed by those who know India best that schools such as this spread the ideals and make known the character of Christ, and are thus preparing the way for His coming. The matter needs very careful study, especially in view of the new Education Code which is expected to result from the findings of Sir Michael Sadler's Commission.

Bishop Cotton's School at Bangalore, under the Rev. F. V. Dawkins (warden), has been in great need of new teachers. Mr. A. G: Haynes has taken his furlough, and we believe has secured at least one man. It is a school for Anglo-Indians, and meets a very definite need. The whole question of missionary work, in what is known as the "domiciled community," is one of great importance and has had far too little attention.

Tinnevelly (£11,011).—This diocese, like the older established part of the Madras Diocese, is developing its own resources and is gradually handing over more and more of its work to the Indians themselves. This note permeates every branch of work mentioned in the Bishop's report.

A most important Trust Association was formed during the year to enable the diocese to hold and administer property. A common scale of pay has also been adopted for all priests working in the diocese.

The Bishop draws attention to our plan of promoting self-support. He says: "Hitherto the S.P.G. has paid two-thirds of the salaries of clergy. Last year we assessed all districts on a population basis at 2¾*d.* (roughly) a head. This year we are raising it to 3*d.* a head (really a little more), and by increasing slightly every year we hope to reach self-support in this matter in the not distant future. The districts already support their own lay-workers and their elementary schools and the church expenses, and less than half of them receive grants from the Society."

The Bishop, writing on Christmas Day, gives a vivid sketch of his visit to Sawyerpuram: "On Tuesday we baptised 100 people, on Wednesday 43, of whom a dozen were adults. At midnight we had 550 communicants, and at 8.30 this morning 150 more. A satisfying Christmas Day."

With regard to the work in general, we notice especially the fact that our grant is mainly devoted to assisting Indian clergy. There is, however, our educational work, and notably that of training the future clergy of the diocese, which is under the supervision of Englishmen. Nazareth is, of course, the centre of this work, and next to it, Ramnad, in the missionary district of Madura and Tuticorin. It is a pleasure to note that, in spite of much illness in the European staff of ladies, the school-work has been well done, owing to the devotion of Indian teachers.

From Nazareth the School Report says: "We have had a particularly good Indian staff this year, so that school-work has gone on happily and the Bible classes and prayer meetings have been a pleasure to all. The Kindergarten section, with over 150 children, is in charge of an Indian teacher, and is doing good work." From the High School at Nazareth we hear: "A good many of the elder girls tried to do a little evangelistic work in their holidays. We had preparatory classes with suggestions, and they left equipped with picture-cards and books. They returned full of gladness, and we had a meeting and talked over what they had been able to do. They spoke very humbly about it all, and that was perhaps the greatest joy."

From the Victoria Girls' School, Tuticorin, we read with interest that: "We tried the experiment of replacing masters by mistresses, and it has been very successful. The mistresses turned out trumps during Miss Imray's illness, taking all school-work and responsibility off my hands. If only we could be sure of a constant supply of women teachers, it would be much better to have mistresses only in a girls' school; but the mistresses soon marry, and there are such continual changes and vacancies that it is very difficult to keep up a staff of women."

The medical work at St. Luke's Hospital, Nazareth has now, at the suggestion of the Bishop, passed, with its dispensaries, into the hands of trustworthy Indian doctors. Dr. Wells has returned home. The work here has made great strides and is really excellent. St. Martin's Hospital at Ramnad has been carried on by Miss Thanam Stephens, a sub-assistant surgeon, and Dr. Warren, who had been invalided from Malacca, took charge for a few months. She has accepted work in the Bengal Hills. The work, however, is now increasing, and an English doctor is much needed.

In conclusion, we cordially endorse the hope expressed by the Bishop: He looks forward to the day when this diocese will be an absolutely self-contained one, managing its own affairs and supporting its own work. The unrest in other parts of India has not touched it, and Bishop Waller gives a key to the reason for this: "The political troubles in India have not touched our Tinnevelly Church. The thoughts of the Christians are concentrated upon their Church life, and they find plenty of scope for self-expression there without seeking it in the troubled waters of political activity."

From the diocese of Colombo (£537) we hear that St. Thomas' College is now in its new quarters at Mt. Lavinia. It has a fine block of twenty class-rooms and a laboratory, one dormitory and a temporary dining-hall, which also serves as a chapel; a portion is railed off at one end. There are four boarding-houses; two of these and the Warden's house are rented. The college is full; no less than sixty applicants were turned away in January. With regard to the work in general, there is "some increased seriousness of life."

Our work in Nagpur (£421)—that huge diocese in central India—is very small. We help to maintain one station in Rajputana. We also make an annual grant to an Anglo-Indian school near Nagpur.

The Bishop of Assam (£1,563) has made a survey of his first five years in office. Church membership among Indians has increased by 546. The average of adult baptisms is 150 a year. The number of clergy has also increased from seven, of whom four were Indians, to thirteen, of whom seven are Indians. The thirty-five catechists employed in 1914 have grown to fifty-nine. The number of simple mission-chapels is now seventy-eight, as against twenty-one in 1914. Contributions in money have also increased. The English residents gave £1,546 this year, and the Indian Christians £307; in 1914 these sums were £345 and £210.

The work both needs and deserves larger support. The diocese has only three English clergymen doing purely missionary work. There are few institutions, and no college connected with it where its catechists and teachers can be trained. There is also the most important task of ministering to British residents, planters and others. The Bishop writes: "Where one of our missionaries ministers to the planters I can generally, if he be the right type of man and gets on with them, raise two-thirds of his income from local subscriptions; but it is essential that the men should be put down in pairs, both on account of the hugeness of the work and because they need the spiritual support which one can give the other. That is why I want five more clergy, three for combined planters and missionary work, one for the training-school for catechists, and one for a hostel in the hills at Shillong for our English and Anglo-Indian boys, who are at present boarding in a Roman Catholic school."

Rangoon (£10,938).—The wonderful work carried on by the blind priest, the Rev. W. H. Jackson, in his school for the blind at Moulmein, has continued to develop. Mr. Jackson came home for a few months during the year to look for a colleague to go out to help him. The aim of the school is to combat that tendency to isolation by (a) getting the pupils to mix more freely with the sighted children who occupy the mission schools in their respective compounds; and (b) by taking them out on a variety of visits and expeditions.

The Government and local help given by those who realise the value of the work makes it possible for the workers to keep pace with their financial developments, which, needless to say, increase year by year.

The Rev. C. E. Garrad, at Mandalay, in a very interesting report tells us of a course of lectures at a summer school for Burmese clergy and catechists given by the Rev. F. R. Edwards before he went on furlough.

Changes of staff make it difficult to give an adequate report of the training-college for girls at Kemmendine. From Mandalay we get evidence that the missionary can give valued help to the Government. Miss Patch was asked to translate a text-book on midwifery for use among the nurses in the Dufferin Hospital, "a piece of work," she adds, "that we found most interesting." In the school at Shwebo a worker was left single-handed, and gave over the teaching of English to her Burmese assistants, "an experiment," she says, "that was amply justified." The Calcutta University Commission, in its report on Education in India, discourages the employment of Indians for this purpose. A plan, started some years ago to provide a mission hospital for children in Mandalay, is now about to materialise; a large sum has been collected locally and a site acquired.

In conclusion, it is clear that missions in India have a great opportunity which they can seize and many serious and far-reaching problems to solve. The Church in India is realising its national character, and many of its ablest sons are claiming absolutely equal treatment with their brothers and sisters from the British Isles. In some quarters we are told frankly that we are not needed and should stand aside. But one salient fact emerges from this discussion: the men, who thus speak, frankly admit that they cannot hope to depend upon purely Indian Church resources; they must have money from the Mother-land. But no Church, diocesan or local, in any land is likely to make financial sacrifices so long as it can be financed by others. There is need of much prayer and meditation, and of serious corporate thinking under the guidance of the Spirit, if these and other kindred matters are to reach a solution. On the whole, and with the summarised reports of Indian Church-work before us, it would seem true that Christ's work makes most steady progress in those districts where the Catholic faith is simply taught and evangelical models are followed. It is the life which counts even more than the message—a life of devotion, a life "hid with Christ in God." Such lives as these—and they are many, both Indian and British—will bring India to the feet of Christ.

V. THE FAR EAST.

Total Grants paid, £48,030.

Number of Missionaries on the Society's list: European, 68; Native, 40. Women: European, 74; Native, 20.

When we pass Eastwards from India, we have our feet still on British soil at Singapore and in Northern Borneo, but we reach out towards large populations which are not under our rule. China lies, like a huge giant, unconscious of its vast strength, old and wise, with a civilisation of its own. We just touch the fringe of the work of its conversion to Christ by the help we give to the dioceses of North China and Shantung. China needs the efforts of the whole Christian Church if it is to be won, so also does Japan, and its dependent nation, the Coreans. That Empire is so keenly alive to modern influences, so restless in its endeavours to solve its social problems. Here, too, our Society gives its help by grants to Corea, to South Tokyo, and to Osaka. We are convinced that we are privileged to offer very precious gifts to these Chinese and Japanese national Churches which will one day take shape. Our grasp of Catholic faith and order, our steady and orthodox teaching, and above all some very devoted lives, are our contribution to the Kingdom of Christ in these great and populous lands.

Singapore (£2,993).—At the beginning of 1919 the Bishop was in Mesopotamia, where he spent four months with the Forces. Here, as elsewhere, the European work has suffered from scarcity of clergy. The State of Perak, which should have three English priests, has only one. Singapore has one chaplain instead of three. Most serious perhaps is the fact that so few visits can now be paid by the clergy to distant parts of the diocese, where men are one, two, three or more days' journey from the nearest church.

The Chinese work in Singapore and other places continues to grow. The Chinese priests have done excellent work, and congregations show their energy and friendliness in a marked way.

Work among Tamils is carried on in most of the chaplaincies of British Malay. There are five Tamil priests in the diocese, and the greater part of their salaries and allowances is provided locally. The difficulty is always to get a fair proportion of time given to evangelistic work among non-Christian Tamils. There is a great tendency for the priest and catechists to think only of the congregation A beginning has been also made of work among Telugus.

The main educational effort of the diocese is St. Andrew's School, Singapore. This has now become a very effective educational and missionary agency. Nearly one-third of the boys are Christians, and most of the teachers. We trust that we may in the near future be able to get a more definite movement towards producing an Asiatic missionary staff for the schools, and Ministry from those receiving an English education.

The Girls' School at Kuala Lumpur has had difficulties, and for this school, and St. Mary's School, Bangkok, the greatest need is a good English staff. There can be few places where the chance of planning and developing the Church's work among girls is more hopeful than in Bangkok—a town larger than Liverpool or Manchester—where there is just beginning to be a desire for female education. The work needs ability and devotion.

It is of the utmost importance that we should be able to have a hostel attached to the proposed Raffles College at Singapore, and so take part in the life of the college, and bring religious and moral influence to bear on as large a number of students as possible.

The medical work in the diocese is due to the energy of Mrs. Ferguson Davie, and the Society has not hitherto contributed very much towards it, and has never been responsible for more than one nursing sister. The oldest part of the work is the hospital at Malacca, and since Dr. Warren was invalided, this has been without a doctor in charge of it, but has been carried on by Miss Cumber with the help and supervision of a civil doctor near by. "Work among the Malays has been more encouraging this year. There has been a distinct increase of Malay in-patients, and a slight increase of Malay out-patients. . . . It is quite common to have them come from 15 to 20 miles. The time has come when some of them do appreciate our help, and we shall be very glad when we can purchase a motor ambulance, and are able to go and help those who are too ill or cannot afford to come to us. . . . The dispensaries are largely attended, and the patients include Europeans and Eurasians, Jews, Tamils, Sikhs, Malays, Japanese and Chinese of every 'bangsa' found in Singapore, and this means that in religion they may be Christians of any denomination or Jews, Mohammedans, Sikhs, Hindus, Buddhists, or any other of the religions professed in China and Japan."

A scheme has been started for building a really good hospital for women and children, and a considerable sum of money has been secured locally for this purpose. A much stronger medical mission staff will be required as soon as it is possible to begin building. Nursing Sister Lilian Hesseltine went out at the end of the year to relieve the strain, as Miss Cumber stays on long after the proper time for her furlough.

Labuan and Sarawak (£7,040).—Work in this diocese is always of a cosmopolitan character. Not only are there Europeans to be ministered to; but Chinese, Tamils, Dyaks, each using their own language, are members of the Church. To cope with all this varied work needs a largely increased staff.

Educational work has prospered. The success of appointing a woman teacher to the lower classes in St. Thomas' Boys' School, Kuching, encourages hope of a similar move in other schools. There is great difficulty in securing good Asiatic teachers for any schools, as the cost of living is so high, and the salaries of mission teachers cannot compare with those of Government employees. It seems doubtful if day schools are altogether satisfactory missionary agencies, as the home influence is often heathen and does not give the boys a chance. At Jesselton the Chinese are building a palatial boys' school with which it will be difficult for a mission school to compete, unless there is the special attraction of European masters in charge, assuring good English teaching. St. Agnes' School for girls at this station has profited by an anonymous gift of £1,100 to build a house for the teachers, who have hitherto lived a mile away from the school. It is no light matter for a woman in the tropics daily to undertake such a journey in the rain or the heat.

Work among Dyaks deals with the Land Dyaks and the Sea Dyaks. These last, who are spread all over Sarawak, use a language quite different from that of the Land Dyaks. Banting is still a stronghold of witch doctors and sorcery, and there are many lapsed Christians. Batang is a district full of promise, for these Dyaks understand the principles of self-help and have contributed well to the building of their church. It is hoped to establish at this station an industrial school for boys, from which those who have a vocation to mission work could be drafted on to the catechists' training-school at Banting. This will avoid the error of bringing them up to Kuching, where they are apt to become dissatisfied with jungle life. As the mission was originally sent out to Sarawak to work among Dyaks, and the prospects are full of hope, the importance of providing sufficient European priests to supervise it is very obvious. To shepherd this large flock, eight more European priests are needed.

Women workers in this diocese are for the most part engaged in school-work, but take their share in visiting among the women and the old girls of their schools. The leper camp, five miles from Kuching, is also visited regularly, and three have been prepared for confirmation.

It is impossible to conclude this report without referring to the Bishop's desire to provide a new Cathedral, which will have to be twice as large as the present pro-Cathedral. Nor must we omit to chronicle the value of the motor-launch. "I wonder how our predecessors got on without her. She has journeyed 3,793 miles during the past year, taken sick workers to the seaside for change, brought rice from out-stations to feed our school children during the shortage of rice, as well as carrying clergy and catechists to various mission stations to conduct services and visit their flock."

North China (£7,339).—The main difficulty, both in this diocese and that of Shantung, is financial. Our grants are made, to the limit of our available resources, in July, for the ensuing year. The loss on exchange is so terrible in China that a grant of £1,000 at the present time is worth, in Chinese currency, very little more than £350. In January, 1920, the Bishop appealed to us to make up his deficit on 1919, which has just been met by a special grant of £2,750 from our funds. He asked for £3,700 additional grant for the present year, saying "that he must know by Easter if he could have it, because, if not, he must cut down his staff." All we could reply is "that we cannot at the present moment guarantee this sum, but that we are doing what we can to raise an Emergency Fund to meet such cases." The Bishop of Shantung is in the same difficulty: the problem is most serious.

Our attention is drawn first of all to a Chinese Missionary Association, administered by the General Board of Missions of the diocese. Its sphere of work is in Shensi, a remote part of the diocese. It is little over three years since its first two Chinese missionaries left Peking; it has now several acres of land, buildings which cost £2,000, a staff of three, including a priest, a boys' school, and several baptised Christians and a few communicants. All this has been done by Chinese funds.

In spite of difficulties, the year 1919 is reported as having been most encouraging. The two older schools are overflowing and a third is making progress. The number of Chinese confirmed in 1919 is 170, which constitutes a record. In Peking there is a little daughter church "learning to stand alone, if not yet to walk alone, in the East City"; and in the Cathedral, which is in the West city, much work is done. In Tientsin our English laymen have contributed £500 to our Chinese work. There is also, at Yung Ching, a guild of young communicant boys, thirty in number, who went out in groups to preach last summer. "It was a pleasure to see these young men together, so full of pleasure were they, and of enthusiasm for the extension of Christ's Kingdom." The people in the villages were most willing to listen, and, when it rained, offered them their temple. Two of the young men had worked as interpreters two years in France.

From the women's side we hear, too, of evangelistic zeal. Miss Hung, a Chinese Associate of St. Faith's, showed her devotion by her willing answer to an appeal for help in the difficult and lonely out-stations. But the younger generation too played their part, and the teachers and pupils of St. Faith's School performed little Mystery and Morality plays in the New Year's Mission. This school is, however, faced with the fact that there are not sufficient funds to help on the Christian girls to higher education, and the staff in the higher classes must perforce be filled by non-Christian masters for lack of sufficiently qualified women to be found among the ranks of old pupils.

With respect to the medical work, dispensaries have been carried on during the year by Dr. Margaret Phillips and Dr. Chang respectively, with the assistance of Sister Lambert. The main effort of the mission in medical work has been transferred to the smaller towns outside Peking, where hospitals are being built and served by Chinese doctors, with some assistance and supervision from the medical missionary. The need of a sanatorium for tubercular cases in the hills near Peking is noted.

A very important "Union Medical College," mainly financed and managed from America, exists in the city. Dr. Smyly, one of the Associate Professors, has been placed on the Society's honorary list at the request of the Bishop.

The fund for the building of the Edward Henry Mosse Memorial Hospital is still growing. The Bishop has selected as the site the town of Ta Tung Fu, in the northern part of the Province of Shansi, where there has hitherto been no medical work of any kind, and the people are extremely conservative and obstructive. Dr. Smyly was in charge of the anti-plague campaign in this town in 1918, and the Chinese considered that the establishment of the medical mission-work there is extremely important.

It is impossible to overstate the importance of medical missions for the evangelisation of China.

Shantung (£6,214)—The Bishop writes that "the educational work through the whole of the stations has been very satisfactory, and though they have been obliged to work with a minimum of equipment and support, a maximum of result has been obtained. The 'strike' movement, so prevalent in the world, showed itself in China in rather a curious manner, when early in the summer the whole of the student body throughout the land went on strike as a protest against the decision of the Paris Peace Conference that Tsingtau should be handed over to Japan. In nearly all other schools (Government and Mission) discipline went to the wind; but in our Church schools work continued as usual, and the students were brought to see that the government of their country must be left to their elders.

"Our educational work is one to which we look for very large and permanent results in the future of the Church in the Province. We are gradually getting more and more men who have received a really efficient modern education. Some of these men, who have graduated at the Christian University at Tsinan, have already done three or four years' work in the diocese as schoolmasters or catechists, and five of them have gone on to Hankow for theological training with a view to ordination. It is to such as these that we look as the main hope for the future native Church—men of real ability, who have proved themselves of real keenness in their work for Christ.

"The forty and more village stations, scattered throughout that portion of the Province where our work centres, provide a strong witness to all around of the Faith and teaching of the Church. In the central stations frequent classes are held for men and women who are preparing for Holy Baptism or Confirmation, and those who receive instruction return to their own homes and hand on to others what they have learnt.

"The financial position is one which causes the greatest possible anxiety, and calls for exceptional endeavour on the part of those at home if the work is not to be permanently affected for ill. The native Christians have done what they could to lighten the burden, but they too have been labouring under exceptional difficulties.

"On the women's side the presence of Deaconess Edwards, lent from North China diocese to help in the training of Chinese women, will, we hope, pave the way for a continuance of such work by Deaconess Haslam, who will first study at Peking. This seems in a fair way to become the ordinary preparation of women for Chinese work. Another worker from the Australian Board of Missions has just taken over the charge of the girls' school at Ping Yin, after eight months at the language school in Peking.

"The medical work in the diocese is being faithfully done. Dr. Cunningham continues in charge of St. Agatha's Hospital, Ping Yin, with the help of Sister Lawrence, and her staff was restored to its full strength during the year by the return of Sister Gibbs, who was demobilised in the early spring, but had to wait until nearly mid-summer before she could obtain a passage. She has been sent for a few months to Yen Chow Fu to take charge of the school there during the furlough of Miss Munzing, and proposes to reopen the out-patients' department of the hospital there, which has been closed for want of a doctor since early in the war. Doctor F. H. Mosse sailed about the end of the year to join the teaching staff of the medical department of the Shantung Christian University, at Tsi Nan Fu, where the Mission has a hostel for Anglican students in the medical and arts departments."

Corea (£4643).—During the year 1919 the mission was shorthanded, as not only was the Bishop obliged to pay a flying visit to England, but the priests, who had been engaged in Europe on war service, had not yet been set free. This naturally threw additional responsibility on the four Corean priests, and the two senior, Mark Kim and Barnabas Kim, were in quasi sole charge of the Kanghwa deanery. Writing of a visit to this station at the close of the year, Bishop Trollope says: "At both places the people brought their Harvest Offerings, which, considering how poor the harvest had been, were on a very generous scale. The Corean Clergy Sustentation Fund, which is fed by voluntary contributions from every church and chapel in the diocese, practically relieves the mission exchequer of the whole cost of maintaining the native priests. In spite of drawbacks and troubles of various kinds, everything points to the realisation in the not distant future of our hope that we may be able to leave the 'Deanery' of Kanghwa almost entirely to the two native priests, with just a minimum of 'foreign' supervision and sympathetic co-operation.

"The work among Corean women and girls is now entirely under the Sisters of St. Peter, and the whole question of women's work is under consideration.

"We have now got to envisage a whole lot of new problems, and the Church has to meet the changing situation by bringing out of her treasure things new as well as old. . . . Whether or no our Sisters will find it possible, as the French Sisters here do, to develop the 'religious life' among the women and girls of Corea, remains to be seen. But whether it is to take the shape of an Order of 'Sisters' or 'Deaconesses' or even 'Widows,' such as we read of in Apostolic times, we simply must find some means of providing the infant Church of Corea with a body of trained Corean women workers, just as we are beginning to supply it with a body of indigenous priests."

This year welcomes back two of the most promising Corean girls after a course of training at the American Episcopal School for women evangelists in Japan.

But all work has been overshadowed by political difficulties. The prevailing disquiet and all the unsettlement arising out of the "Independence" movement in Corea have done not a little to weaken the Church's work. "Strikes" succeed one another with bewildering rapidity among the students of the higher schools of Seoul, both of boys and girls, with disastrous results to the hostels. Over and above this there is the bitter racial feeling between Coreans and Japanese which enters into every question. There is no report of the work among Japanese during the past year, but the present position only makes its importance more urgent. If Japanese Christians can combine with their Corean brothers and sisters in the one Church, the political problem will become capable of solution.

There is medical work in the diocese of some value. St. Luke's Hospital, in Chemulpo, has been closed, since Dr. Borrow left. But it has done its work, for the Church in that town is established on a firm basis.

Dr. Laws has had a very busy time at the Ay-In Hospital, Chinchun, largely due to the political troubles, which provided him with an inordinate number of patients. "Many," he writes, "were mere spectators, never dreaming that they would get hurt. We did our best for them, and a jolly crowd they were, too. Those who could do so, helped the 'lame ducks,' sharing their food, tobacco, and even money. Had it not been for the plentiful supply of wool and dressings (removed with the Bishop's consent) from the closed Hospital of St. Luke's at Chemulpo during the previous year, we should have been hard up. Did they pay anything? No! They were all too poor, mostly farm hands working on a yearly agreement, living from hand to mouth. They were very, very grateful, and went away with some idea of Christianity." His report demonstrates the fact that the country parts of Corea are still thoroughly primitive.

South Tokyo (£6,286).—The year of peace was marked in the diocese by the death of two of its best-loved and most influential clergy, Dr. J. T. Imai (priest) and D. J. Iwai (deacon).

Dr. Imai was a disciple of the Society's earliest missionary, Archdeacon Shaw. When the S.P.G., the C.M.S., and the American Missions united their Church Divinity schools in the Central Theological College, it was Dr. Imai who was chosen to be the pilot of the new vessel, and it is significant of his ideals that he kept the pastoral lectures in his own hands.

Mr. Imai was a disciple of Mr. Gemmill. He was of such promise that he was sent to Trinity College, Toronto, where he carried off many prizes in open competition. He returned to Japan a man of learning, and his early work and teaching soon showed that his was the true learning—scholarship devoted to the Glory of God and the spiritual life. Soon after his return, the dread disease of Japan—tuberculosis—attacked him, and after eight years of suffering he was taken from us.

Our S.P.G. work in Japan needs new life. The older Japanese clergy are being taken from us, and no new Englishmen have joined up during the past ten years. It suffers even more than most countries from the high cost of living, and a 35 per cent. loss on exchange adds to the Society's difficulties. There is much anxiety lest, instead of new life, the Society may have to send orders for retrenchment.

The close of 1919 finds the Church leaders standing to attention, but not quite sure whether the next order will be "dismiss" or "forward." Alas! we have news that the Bishop has been compelled to retrench.

With regard to St. Andrew's House (Shiba) the Rev. W. C. Gemmill writes: "After the death of Archdeacon King in June, 1913, it was thought at first that perhaps the time had come when the Mission should be closed; but, when this rumour got about, so many letters came to the Bishop from both clergy and laymen in different parts of Japan (men of varying Church views) expressing the high esteem in which they held the Mission and how important they consider it as a centre of prayer and spiritual life, that he determined that, as far as he was concerned, it must be continued if at all possible. This means that new men have to be found to infuse new life into the Mission and carry on its work—young men vigorous in body, mind and spirit, earnest men of clear definite Churchmanship ready to live a simple life under rule (a rule at present not, perhaps, as strict as it might be), and to give themselves to spend and be spent in the service of the Church in Japan."

Surely the appeal for "spirit-filled" men, and the means for their support, will not be allowed to pass unheeded. A few strong, devout priests going to Japan at this moment could work miracles for the uplift of the "Holy Church of Japan."

The outstanding feature in the women's work during 1919 is the arrival from Truro of four sisters from the Community of the Epiphany to establish in Tokyo a House of Prayer. This is the fulfilment of a promise made thirty years ago by Bishop Wilkinson, and the remarkable welcome given on all sides shows that the long waiting has not been in vain. The sisters have taken over the charge of St. Hilda's House with its chapel and guest-room, and the remaining members of St. Hilda's Mission are merged in the general life and work of the diocese.

The Women's Conference last year was full of vigour, and was specially marked by the share taken by the Japanese members in the discussion of big subjects of general interest, e.g. the marriage of Christian girls, methods of evangelistic work, social service.

The year was also marked by the beginning, in a very small way at first, of personal service among the poor on the part of Christian Japanese ladies of leisure.

Educational workers have had their hands full. The Diocesan High School is full to overflowing, and workers at St. Mary's can hardly keep pace with requests for English lessons. In both these centres, and also in the hostel for students, the desire for, and interest in, Bible teaching shows a marked development.

Direct evangelistic work among adults goes on slowly both in town and country. An encouraging feature in most reports is the evidence of increasing zeal and effort on the part of the Christian women to lead, and in some cases teach, their neighbours and friends.

Osaka (£6,514).—The Bishop writes: "When it is remembered that there is now a loss of £20 = 200 yen on every £100 sent out, owing to the adverse exchange, and that the purchasing power of a yen is less than half what it was before the war, and that the scale of salaries was even then a minimum scale, it is easy to see that many of our workers are in real want, and that it is very difficult for the Society to meet their needs. We have been glad to see that the Japanese Christians have come forward well in this emergency: in our churches connected with the Pastorate Fund those that are wholly self-supporting have increased the stipends of their pastors, and those that are partly assisted have paid 30 per cent. on their own contributions, while the Christians of the diocese have undertaken to raise a sufficient sum to make the salary of each pastor, or semi-pastor concerned, 30 per cent. more than before. In Kochi, where alone the S.P.G. has a semi-self-supporting congregation, they have not only increased their contributions so as to enable their pastor to proceed to priest's orders, but have also added 30 per cent. to their quota."

Japan has too much concentrated her attention on the things of this life and tends towards materialism. Only the Church can save her.

One of the most interesting reports on the women's side refers to work among factory girls in Kobe. In one case meetings are held in a boarding-house with an audience of 250 to 500, in another case there is a night school for 50 or 60, in yet another, work has passed out of the early stage of dealing with large numbers, and four or five women are making definite "inquiries." Reports from Japanese workers in their lonely and responsible work breathe a little note of despondency, but we, too, in England know that the present conditions with household anxieties and over-employment means lack of time for spiritual things. "Very little Church feeling, though individuals have very deep faith and lead consistent Christian lives" is an interesting note in one English worker's report. The High School for Girls in Kobe has some difficulty in holding its own as one of six high schools, the only other one in Christian hands being that belonging to the American Congregational Mission with beautiful buildings, splendid endowments, a staff of eight "foreign" teachers. On the other hand the Church school, though "the smallest, worst housed and worst equipped," now numbers 134 compared to the roll of 54 of a few years ago. Of these, only 20 are members of the Nippon Sei Kokwai, the majority being non-Christians; yet the small Christian element and the Christain teaching, and example does tell in after years, and former pupils are to be found in the ranks of the Christians.

VI. AUSTRALASIA

Total Grant paid, £3,077.

Number of Missionaries on the Society's list: European, 44; Native, 2.

The Society assists five dioceses in Australasia from its General Fund. The time cannot be distant when the Church of Australia will take over the whole of the task of evangelisation, both on the continent and in the islands, leaving the S.P.G. to cultivate other fields. As we go to press the sum of £36 reaches us from Perth, Western Australia, being the collections at their Anniversary Service.

The diocese of Bunbury (£676), the population of which is very small, of whom only 60,000 people, about 40 per cent., are nominally Church-people, covers 60,000 square miles. The people are farmers, timber mill-hands, and tradespeople in a small way. In the country they gather for their monthly services and appreciate them; in the towns also the churches are well attended. Clergy ride or drive about, visiting farms and mills. It sometimes takes a whole day to visit one or two farms.

The Bishop reports that a new mission to nine timber mills round Dwellingup has been opened. The missioner, the Rev. W. Scott Clarke, has had a wonderful reception by the men as well as the women.

North-West Australia (£203).—The Bishop writes: "This poor little diocese owes much to S.P.G., and to Bishop Montgomery's sympathy. 'Little' does not refer to its area of 500,000 square miles. The white population scattered over a large part of the country probably does not amount to 10,000. The aborigines are variously estimated at from 10,000 to 30,000. When I came here in 1910 I found three clergy and four small churches. Since then, thirteen clergy have worked in the diocese in addition to myself, though the staff has never exceeded seven clergy at one time."

Kalgoorlie (£576).—The Right Rev. Golding-Bird resigned owing to ill-health and has since been translated to Mauritius. His successor is the Rt. Rev. William Edward Elsey, who was warden of the Bush Brotherhood in the diocese of Bunbury. Kalgoorlie is a diocese of gold-fields, where townships depend on the mine or mines in their vicinity. Consequently, one must not count on a town being long-lived, as the following extract from one of our missionary's reports shows: "The mines on which Laverton depended ceased to get payable ore, and partly or altogether closed down. To show the sudden collapse of these places, take for instance Mt. Morgans. Every Friday the train left Laverton for Mt. Morgans at 2 P.M., returning at 10 P.M. This allowed me to give religious instruction in the state school and visit the hospital and sick, and conduct Evensong at 7.30 P.M. One Friday I visited, and as usual had about forty people in the really beautiful church—there was no hint of any stoppage—but next Friday there were only ten souls in the town. At one time Mt. Morgans had a population of over 1,000 people, now it is a wilderness of corrugated iron and dilapidated brick houses, and weather-torn, flapping tents. Idah, with a population of 160, went down to twenty-five. Augusta, with a population of seventy, closed down completely." The district over which this writer has charge is 301 miles across, and covers 400,00 square miles.

Carpentaria (£100).—The Bishop in his letter enclosing his report says: "I am very thankful to say that I am not applying for the renewal of the grant for 1921. I hope we shall be able to manage without it, and I am sure that S.P.G. will have as much as can be managed in other parts of the world. I need not say how grateful we are for all the help that has been given to the diocese, and I hope we shall be able to do a little every year to help your work in other parts of the world."

These are very encouraging words, and we thank God that the diocese will be able to maintain itself in future. The S.P.G. began work in Australia in 1793 and has assisted every diocese.

During 1919 two native deacons have been ordained in the Torres Straits Islands (vide Mission Field, April, 1920). In reference to this event the Bishop writes: "Representative native Christians were present at the ordination in the Cathedral and nearly every island was represented. The service was beautifully quiet and reverent, and it made a great impression on the native Christians who were present at it.

"On the day after the ordination, a meeting of representatives from the islands was held. At this meeting the positions of the deacons, their work, and their manner of life were explained by the Bishop, who made it plain that the deacons would not be a caste apart from the rest of the people, but must work their gardens, be under Government control as the islanders are, and in dress in ordinary life there would be no distinction.

"Perhaps the most important thing done at the meeting was the acceptance of an assessment for the islands for the General Funds of the Mission. The people were asked to raise £150 in 1920, the amount being distributed amongst the islands on a basis of population. Within a month one island had sent in its quota for 1920. The fact that some of their own people have been ordained will make the people realise their duty and responsibility in many ways. The Church becomes racy of the soil and not something imported from outside.

Polynesia (£1,522).—We cannot go into the questions of the Indian labour problem in Fiji which is in this diocese, but our missionary at Suva writes: "All Indians in Fiji were set free from their indentures on January 1, 1920. The outlook for our future as an agricultural colony depending absolutely upon Asiatic cheap labour is far from encouraging." The Rev. R. T. Mathews tells us that he has travelled over the whole of the islands, and has raised £3,600 towards the cost of building a Cathedral Church for the diocese. He gives an interesting report of a special evangelistic tour which he undertook for the purpose of visiting the great sugar-growing and manufacturing districts. In the course of it he visited a native village, by name, Vatu Kerasa. "No Church of England clergyman had ever been there, and I was welcomed by the chief, an old man of sixty years, who had once been a cannibal but is now a devout Christian. I held a service in Fijian and broken English and got on as well as I could. There was a very large body of natives. I shall not readily forget their singing of our hymns. These hymns were translated into Fijian by the early Methodists and are sung to our familiar tunes. The effect of the massed voices was grand, the men singing the bass and the women the soprano. They all knelt at prayer with their faces on the ground, showing the utmost reverence all through."

Bishop Willis, the Assistant Bishop for the Tongan group, sends us a report of the Fifth Council of the Anglican Church in Tonga, held in September, 1918. Unfortunately, the report is in the native language, which we cannot read, but we gather from it that there were then 95 communicants, four of whom were serving with His Majesty's Forces, 17 adults awaiting confirmation, and 119 children in the schools, 76 of whom were baptised.

VII. EUROPE.

In spite of the cessation of hostilities, very few of the Society's chaplaincies on the Continent were re-opened in 1919. In consequence of the high cost of living and heavy travelling expenses, large numbers of visitors were prevented from taking their customary holidays abroad as in pre-war days. As an indication of the effects of the war upon this branch of the Society's activities, it is worth recording that in an ordinary pre-war year the Bishops of London and Gibraltar used to grant, on the Society's nomination, some 250 licences or permissions to officiate; in the war years only three or four were issued: in the year 1919 it was still only possible to issue twenty such licences. However, four of the permanent chaplaincies were revived, viz:—Berne, Cannes, Mentone, and S. Jean de Luz, while at the time of going to press special measures are being taken with regard to Dieppe and Boulogne, which it is hoped will result in these two chaplaincies being restored to a permanent status. Summer chaplaincies are being gradually re-opened, but (especially in Switzerland) there are many irritating circumstances, as well as considerable expense, connected with continental travelling, which make it very difficult to know how to proceed.

The drain on the Continental chaplaincies Fund has of course been very heavy, since there have been few or no congregations to supply the necessary funds, and claims for repairs have been frequent and imperative.

NORTHERN AND CENTRAL EUROPE is under the jurisdiction of the Bishop of London. Assistant-Bishop, the Right Rev. Herbert Bury, D.D. (Cons. 1908), 1911.

I. THE SOCIETY AND ITS ORGANISATION

I. The Society in its London Home

WE are a Society with an organisation; our Home is at 15 Tufton Street, and our work is world-wide. We wish that all our fellow-members could pay us a visit from time to time; we can assure them of a warm welcome. The house hums with activity from the basement to the roof. The purpose for which we live is the extension of Christ's Kingdom upon earth; our aim is to provide a sufficient number of men and women to carry the Word and the Sacraments to all the nations. We are on the side of those who teach militant Christianity and claim the whole world for Jesus Christ. We try to live for Christ and to forget ourselves; the Church is everything, and the Society in comparison is nothing.

(a) Our Office.—We have an office and its staff. It is hardly necessary to say that many of us have felt acutely the loss of our dear friend Bishop Montgomery, whose cheerful spirit, wise counsel and fatherly care have meant so much. We have also to record with deep regret that the Rev. E. P. Sketchley left us on October 31, after thirty-eight years of devoted service. We miss acutely his genial presence, his wide knowledge, his wisdom and gentleness. He is replaced by the Rev. E. Courtenay West, formerly Archdeacon of Port Elizabeth, who brings to our aid his experience of work in South Africa. Mr. C. F. Pascoe completed his fiftieth year of service last November: may he long be spared to help us! He is an encyclopædia of missionary knowledge and is loved and known in all parts of the world.

In the department of Junior Work, the Rev. A. Hawkins Jones has replaced Rev. G. T. Bartholomew, to whose vision and initiative we owe a great deal of its present vigorous life. Miss K. Sutherland joined our staff as secretary for K.M. literature. Miss Goffe, after five years of devoted service as secretary for girls' schools, resigned on December 31, to the great regret of her fellow-workers. Miss Mary Jones, who has given loving and unselfish service as secretary to the women candidates' department, leaves us, and is replaced by Miss MacGregor. The C.W.W. records her loss with much regret as well as that of Miss Mary Johnston, who for seven years acted as travelling secretary. Her tours through England have been of the greatest value to the cause of missions over seas. We wish her God-speed in her new work.

(b) Our House and its Extension.—May we tell our readers something about our House? The room on the left, as one enters, is marked "Enquiries," and seats are provided for visitors who have to wait. Just beyond is the door leading to our Publications Department—a busy hive of workers, where orders are received for our publications. Straight before one is the well-known books shop, where books, leaflets, maps, and pictures are for sale. To the right of the entry is the Finance Department, and farther on the Home Organisation offices, dealing with deputation speakers, both men and women. Upstairs, as most of us know, are the beautiful Chapel and Board-room, the Secretary's room, and Mr. Pascoe's room, where the foreign correspondence is mainly dealt with. On the second floor the Deputy Secretary's room faces the staircase, while next door, in room No. 18, is the Organising Secretary for London; to the right is a small waiting-room for visitors, used occasionally also for Committees, the offices for the Junior Department, and on the left, our library and Editorial Secretary's room. On the third floor we are faced by the office of the Secretary for women's work, and away to the right, the Candidates' Department (male) and European Chaplaincy office (Rev. E. C. West); to the left are the Candidates' Department (women), the Foreign Secretary (women), the Educational (study) Department, lantern slides, and a second Board-room. On the fourth floor is the Medical Department. The Household meets for prayer at 10 A.M. and at 12.

It may surprise some people that this beautiful house is being extended. In 1918 the Finance Committee recommended the Standing Committee to complete the house. It was pointed out that we owned valuable land which we were leaving unoccupied; and that if some of our capital were used to complete the building, we could use a part for the much needed extension of our library, and also for the housing of our Exhibitions, for which we rent a house in Hammersmith. We could let the rest of the new extension until we needed it ourselves. The work will be completed in June, and the rents we have been able to secure will more than justify the transaction. It will be admitted by most people that it is a great gain to have our building completed and its extension ready for our use when we need it. It is unnecessary to add that money subscribed for work overseas has not been used for this building.

II. Our Committees.

Our readers will be interested to learn that our Society is a very democratic body, and is managed by elected committees. The ruling power resides in the Standing Committee, which meets monthly: it is a large body of clergy and laity representing the Church. There are seldom less than sixty present, more often well over a hundred. It would be hard to find a body of men more fitted for their important work. All that we do, both at home and abroad, is done by vote of this committee. Resolutions passed in the sub-committees are reported to the Standing Committee, which either approves them or "turns them down."

There are also our sub-committees, upon the members of which falls the real burden of the work. There are committees for India, for Africa and the West Indies, for China and the Far East, and for Europe. All questions affecting our work overseas are carefully examined and the grants considered. There are also committees for candidates, in addition to the Board of Examiners. There is the all-important Applications Committee, which decides what grants to recommend each year, the Finance Committee, the Committee of Selection and Reference (the inner council of S.P.G.), the Committee for Medical Work, the Home Organisation Committee (through which the Junior Work, Study, Exhibition Department report to the Standing Committee), and a Literature Committee. There are also the Special Committees dealing with women workers. It will be easily believed that our affairs are handled with the greatest possible care, and that there is little risk of money being wasted.

III. The Work of Women.

We cannot have a report on "Women's Work," since we are unable to separate it from the work of men. It is impossible to overestimate the value of their service to the Church overseas; it increases in importance as the years go on. The earlier idea of organising women at home to support the work done by women abroad is now replaced by a wider vision; women in these days work for the Church, and their efforts are devoted towards helping the General Funds of the Society. We may, however, draw attention to a few among their special activities. They have been mainly instrumental in promoting sales of work, exhibitions, tableaux, &c., and are in many cases the leading spirits of Study Circle. The Secretary of C.W.W. asks us to draw attention to some special needs. The demands for Church needlework and embroidery have increased during the past year; and many a mission church overseas has been enabled to present a more seemly and dignified worship owing to gifts which have been sent from home.

The new Charter of the Society is now drafted, and should become effective during the present year. Hitherto only men have been admitted as "Incorporated Members," with the right to sit upon committees; by the new Charter the privilege of being an Incorporated Member is extended to women, on payment of the same annual subscription as that paid by the men—namely, one guinea. They will be eligible for election upon the Standing Committee.

IV. Our Provincial Organisation.

We have, of course, our organising secretaries, whose names are given on page 88 of the Report; and these are assisted by a very large and zealous body of honorary secretaries—women as well as men—for dioceses, archdeaconries, rural deaneries and parishes. We cannot be too grateful for their devoted work. If the heart of the Society beats at Westminster, its eyes and ears, its arms and hands, extend throughout the country. These are the men and women whose task it is to keep the hearts of Churchpeople warm, and to widen their vision; who so organise the work that our income rises year by year, enabling us to do greater and ever greater service to Christ abroad. The Society's task cannot be done unless all this vast quantity of voluntary work is efficiently performed. Let every worker take to heart the great thought that Christ needs him or her for this high duty, and let us rise increasingly to the splendid task which is entrusted to us.

V. An Incident.

I conclude the section with a story. On the wall of our Board-room hangs a framed address of gratitude, presented in August 1919 by the rector, churchwardens, and parishioners of St. Michael's in Bristol, Rhode Island, U.S.A. It was accompanied by a cheque for £265 18*s.* 10*d.* Dr. F. W. Williams, churchwarden, made the presentation in person. "We determined," he told us, "when we were keeping what we believed to be the 200th anniversary of the formation of our parish, to collect a sum of money, which should amount to one pound for every year of our life as a parish, and to present it to the S.P.G. in gratitude for the assistance it gave us more than 150 years ago.

Could a better proof be given that our Society is right in maintaining what we may call its double basis ? It works for the conversion of non-Christian nations ; it also gives assistance to our own sons and daughters of British race beyond the seas. We help to build churches which may be the central homes of thriving, self-respecting, generous parishes in days to come. This policy is both right and far-sighted.

II. HOME ACTIVITIES.

The monthly meetings of Incorporated Members and Members of the Society have been duly held on the third Friday in each month in the Board-room, at 2.30 P.M. Many interesting addresses have been delivered, notably by the Lady Surma, envoy of the Assyrian nation and sister of the patriarch, Rev. W. H. Jackson (the blind priest of Burma), Right Rev. Bishop Kestell-Cornish, Archdeacon Harris Rivett (of Brazil), the Right Rev. the Bishop of Honduras, Rev. J. C. Winslow, Miss Tickell, and others. We wish to urge our readers to make these monthly meetings better known.

One hundred and seventy-seven persons were added to our roll of Incorporated Members in 1919.

II. S.P.G. Week in London.

We had the usual influx of enthusiastic workers from all parts, as well as from London itself. The Annual Sermon in St. Paul's on April 30 was preached by Bishop Gore. On Thursday (May 1) our meeting in the Albert Hall drew a fair audience: the addresses were given by the Bishop of Peterborough (Chairman), Bishop Montgomery and Bishop King. On Friday afternoon (May 2) we had our Annual Meeting in Queen's Hall: speakers, His Grace the Archbishop of Canterbury (our President), the Bishop of Corea, and Archdeacon Etheridge (of Mashonaland). Our Annual Conference of Women Workers was held in the Board-room on Thursday morning, May 1. The chair was taken by Mrs. George Bell: speakers, Mrs. Woods, Miss Whitaker, Miss Todhunter, Miss G. M. King. In the afternoon the discussion was opened by Mrs. Robins and Mrs. Western. The Annual Meeting of our Medical Missions was held on Wednesday evening in the Church House (Hoare Memorial): speakers, the Right Rev. the Dean of Westminster (Chairman), Dr. Weir, Dr. H. J. Smyly. On the Saturday previous we began our work by the meeting of the "King's Workers"; on Tuesday, the Organising Secretaries met in Conference in the morning, and the Hon. Secretaries for Junior Work and King's Messengers at night. On Friday, Quiet Day addresses for the workers were given by Rev. Austin H. Thompson, vicar of St. Peter's, Eaton Square. The week ended with an address by the Bishop of Dover to the Senior King's Messengers on Saturday afternoon in St. Margaret's Church.

III. Meetings in the Provinces.

It is of course impossible to keep a record of these meetings. As many as possible were addressed by Bishop King and Brigadier-General Jenkins, as it was deemed important that the newly appointed Secretary and Deputy-Secretary should be widely known. In nearly every case the response was excellent, and an increased spirit of enthusiasm has been awakened in the country. There are, however, certain suggestions which might be carried out in the year before us, which would contribute greatly to the success of our missionary meetings. The platform should be filled with influential laity as well as clergy; a strong choir might be organised; intercessions should be more prominent; above all, the collection should be made with real devotion, such as befits an offering made to God. A few words of prayer might be said, and a doxology sung when the collection is laid before the president; also, it is urged, no announcement should be made of the sum collected, as applause is out-of-place at such a time. It should also be borne in mind that posters and hand-bills do not fill a room, unless the importance of the meeting has been pressed home upon the public. The clergy can, and do, help us here. The Annual Meeting for Missions should be regarded as an event of outstanding importance in the spiritual life of a town or village.

IV. Irish Auxiliary—Army—Navy.

(a) Ireland.—Despite the unrest and anxiety in Ireland, the cause of the Church's work overseas has been loyally supported. The General Fund has received £4,130 13*s.* 5*d.*, while Special Funds have claimed £3,346 7*s.* 5*d.*

The Peace Thankoffering Fund reports £875 14*s.* 7*d.* We hope to add considerably to this amount in 1920. Parishes hitherto unable to do anything for this cause will make their contributions in 1920. The Women's Work Committee also has a slight increase to report, the total amount being £480 17*s.* 6*d.*

Miss Bewley, Secretary to the C.W.W., paid a visit to Ireland in October, and was able to give valuable suggestions to the Women's Work Committee. It is arranged that Bishop King shall visit Ireland in May 1920.

The Secretary, Rev. J. H. MacCleary, for the Northern sphere was re-appointed for a second year in October last. His presence and work should greatly increase the interest in the S.P.G.

(b) Army Auxiliary.—The Rev. M. W. Churchward, C.B.E., who is the honorary organising secretary and treasurer of this fund, records with much satisfaction that the sum of £1,583 is the Army contribution for 1919. This is only £83 less than the sum given in 1918. Altogether, the sum of £7,000 has been subscribed by the Army since the beginning of the war. Some of our warmest friends and most zealous workers are found among the chaplains and assistant Chaplain-Generals. We venture to express a hope that the Army Missionary Association will remain vigorous.

(c) Navy Auxiliary.—The Rev. T. W. L. Caspersz, R.N. Hospital, Haslar, Gosport, is hon. secretary of this association. The sum contributed in 1919 was £233, as against £139 in 1918. We cannot help expressing a hope that this sum will show a marked increase in the present year. There are many of all ratings who take their religion seriously, and who are convinced that Missions to the heathen are a duty. The work will be easier to organise now that the war is over. We venture to hope that all chaplains who are willing to help us will communicate with the hon. secretary. The chief event of importance was the visit paid to the fleet by the Rev. J. H. Linton, now consecrated Bishop in Persia: he had a splendid reception and was enabled to remove the misapprehensions of those who have "no use" for Missions because they have met a good many bad specimens of our religion in the ports and coast towns. Such people would change their opinion if they could visit the orderly schools and disciplined native Churches of the interior.

V. Medical Missions.

The medical work of the Society is essentially a part of S.P.G., but has its own separate fund. It exists partly to secure that the requirements of medicine shall not be overlooked by a body of missionaries, nearly all of whom are engaged in other work; but still more because there are so many persons who are willing to contribute to work of this kind, but who do not know enough about the work overseas to care to assist in its evangelistic agencies. The Medical Missions Department is therefore of great importance; it arouses interest in new circles at home, and is responsible for the support of our medical work overseas. At home it makes a strong appeal to all who love their fellow men; and in the mission field, hearts are opened to the Gospel by our doctors and nurses.

During 1919 the total amount contributed to the Medical Mission Funds was £14,678, but of this nearly £5,000 is earmarked by the givers for certain objects, and is not available for the regular annual grants which support the work. There are now 152 beds and 55 cots in our various hospitals specially supported. A new method has been devised of providing an object of special and personal interest to those who wish to earmark an annual gift, by arranging to allot so many shares of £1 each in the support of one of our medical missionaries to anyone who will undertake a regular contribution for the purpose; and Share Certificates are issued to them, showing the amount, and in whom the shares are taken.

We have also a perennial need of india-rubber sheeting and gloves and other medical and nursing appliances. Above all, we want medicines, or money to purchase them. This is humanitarian work, and should appeal to many who do not feel drawn to assist Evangelistic agencies. Medical work is the revelation of Christ's love to the poor and outcast.

Dr. Weir, the secretary of the department, was demobilised in March 1919, and returned to the office, replacing Rev. W. O'Connor, for whose services we are most grateful. Miss Mosse has joined the staff at the office. We regret to say that Miss Welldon has found herself unable to continue her services and resigned on December 31. Rev. L. J. Lock, M.R.C.S., L.R.C.P., our medical deputation secretary, was demobilised in August, and returned to his work.

VI. Auxiliaries.

(a) The King's Workers.—Secretary, Miss Blyth; number of members, 3,460. This is a most valuable organisation, and should be much better known. It is probable that many of those who are giving us splendid help as local secretaries, stewards of exhibitions, study circle organisers, King's Messenger's workers, are also "Kings Workers." There are special groups of members, who help us by text-painting, typing, braille copying, maps. The organising secretaries and hon. local secretaries should take special note of the "King's Workers" in their districts; they are always ready to help in arranging meetings, or in any other way. There are Sunday schools which they could visit as speakers, by invitation, upon missionary topics. Intercession is at the centre of all its activities; the number of intercession papers issued quarterly is 386.

(b) The Junior Clergy Missionary Association, under the energetic chairmanship of Rev. C. W. Alington, is rapidly recovering its life and energy. There are 96 branches and 2,600 members. The war, with its call upon the younger clergy, had for the time weakened its numbers. The Society tries to maintain as close a touch as possible with this valuable Association of the younger clergy. We remember the splendid enthusiasm of its early years, and the way in which its members worked up the Annual Meeting of the Society. Never were meetings so crowded either in London or the provinces; it was felt by all that the Society had turned over a new leaf, and that the old dreary missionary meeting was a thing of the past. We still need that young energy and enthusiasm; let us pray God that we may obtain it. Fourteen of its members have been accepted for the mission field in 1919. By means of the recruiting campaign one special piece of its work was emphasised and developed, viz., the enrolment of clergy, formerly known as "Attestation." Members of the J.M.C.A. were earnestly appealed to, and we know that at least half of them have faced the question and returned enrolment forms to headquarters. They express a readiness "to give equal consideration to invitations to serve overseas or at home," and we trust the signing of such a form means facing the big question of overseas service in a more definite way than hitherto demanded of J.M.C.A. men. At the Spring Conference in London, the "background" of this appeal for enrolment was the urgency and the encouragement of the missionary outlook to-day; while at Manchester, the inspiration which accompanies the joys and difficulties of the missionary's life and work was dwelt upon.

The Association faces the new year with real hope, and is arranging for its Spring Conference in S.P.G. Week, and will also commemorate its twenty-fifth anniversary by holding a reunion during the June Missionary Week, at which it is hoped our former leaders will be able to be present, including the Archbishop of Brisbane and the Bishop of Bombay, who will be at home for the Lambeth Conference.

(c) The Laymen's Missionary Association.—The Metropolitan branch meets in the S.P.G. House on the second Thursday in each month, except July and September, at 6.45. Light refreshments are provided. A short intercession service in the chapel at 7.15, followed by an address by a missionary: all laymen are welcome. There is also a flourishing branch in Bristol.

(d) St. Edward's Hostel, Worthing.—This Home, which is the gift of Mrs. Cochrane, should have a great field of usefulness before it. It is maintained as a "Home of Rest" for returned missionaries. The cost of board and lodging is 30*s.* per week per head for missionaries and £2 2*s.* for other Church workers.

(e) Foreign Stamps.—Gifts of foreign stamps will be gladly received by Miss K. Dalton, 86 Arthur Street, Chelsea, S.W. 3; also, for the Medical Fund by Miss Mignon, 44 Alma Vale Road, Clifton. Much more might be done if sufficient assistance could be found to deal with the task of arranging and pricing the specimens, and of circulating sheets of stamps on approval.

III. THE CANDIDATES' DEPARTMENT AND EUROPEAN CHAPLAINCIES.

During the year the following twenty-five men have been accepted by the Board of Examiners and commissioned for work abroad. Seven for India, viz., Rev. L. E. Browne and Rev. W. F. Cotton for Rangoon, the Rev. J. C. Ford for Calcutta, the Rev. F. T. Maydew and Rev. W. H. Taylor for Chota Nagpur, the Rev. S. H. Thomas for Delhi, the Rev.

F. S. Wyld for Assam. Four for the Far East, viz., Rev. B. F. Betteridge and Dr. F. H. Mosse for Shantung, the Rev. T. V. G. Gilfillan for North China, and Mr. S. H. Lawrence for Labuan and Sarawak. Four for Africa, viz., Rev. F. S. Drewe, M.R.C.S., for Kaffraria, Rev. C. W. C. Redman for Madagascar, Rev. J. E. Steward for Zululand, Captain E. H. I. Auxiliaries to Candidates Department.

(a) The Missionary Preparation Union.—This association exists to foster vocations to work for Christ overseas: it has 15 young men and 281 young women members. Miss Bunyon continues to hold her post of hon. secretary to the women's section, and her work is valued by all. The Rev. W. O'Connor resigned the secretaryship of the men's section when he left the Society's staff, his place being taken by the Deputy Secretary. During the year 1919, in the women's section, 65 new members were admitted and 78 resigned. Fourteen members are under missionary training in connection with our Society. Three members and one correspondent have sailed for the mission field. There was a delightful summer gathering at the Bishop's house, Southwark, and another in Birmingham. Mrs. Burge has resigned her place on the Council, but remains in touch with the Union.

(b) Candidates' Five Shilling Fund.—This fund, begun in 1905 for the purpose of providing money for the training of men and women for missionary service in connection with S.P.G., originated in a contribution of 5*s.* sent by a deaf and blind inmate of a Devonshire workhouse. The contributions since that day have exceeded £3,000 annually, although no direct applications or reminders are issued apart from a note in the Quarterly Intercession Paper. Last year the total amounted to £3,022, received from over 5,000 donors. This fund provided the means by which the Candidates' Department of the Society carries on its extensive work. Contributions may be sent to the Rev. Canon Bullock-Webster at 1 All Hallows Lane, London, E.C. 4.

(c) The Quarterly Intercession Paper, which has now a regular circulation of about 107,000 copies, is issued in four forms. A General Edition of 16 pp. at 6*d*. per dozen, a Large-Type Edition at 4d. each, a Shorter Edition at 5*d*. a dozen, and a Braille Edition at 9*d*. each.

The paper aims at including all the missionary dioceses of the English Catholic Church in an ordered cycle of intercession. Those who wish to receive copies should apply to the editor, the Rev. Canon Bullock-Webster, 1 All Hallows Lane, London, E.C. 4.

II. S.P.G. Principles and the Church's Need.

We wish it to be clearly understood that our Society does not commission workers, either priests or laity, for the work overseas. It gives information, conducts correspondence, makes inquiries, examines testimonials and references, keeps in close touch with the Bishops' Commissaries, and (above all) provides or helps to provide for the training of those who offer; but it does not commission persons, because the Church alone can do this. Thus a priest or layman examined and recommended by the Board of Examiners, and the woman worker passed for service by the Society's Committee, receive alike their commission from the Bishop of the diocese to whom they are sent. Thus candidates do not offer themselves to the Society, but to the Church.

This is a most important point. There is a widespread feeling abroad that Societies are a mistake and a nuisance, and that the Church itself should be its own Missionary Society. It is rightly felt that no one should regard himself, or herself, as an emissary of a society, but of the Church. The Home Church sends him (or her) forth with its blessing; and the bishop of the diocese, to whom the missionary goes, issues his licence or gives his commission. If those who object to societies would remember this, they could support S.P.G. just because, in this important respect, it is not a society. It confers no authority on those whom it sends.

Yet the "dismissal service," so often held in our chapel, is a very real thing. The Society gathers for prayer, and the Secretary, or one of his colleagues, commends those who are outward bound to the care of God, blessing them with the imposition of the hand. There is no commission given here. The Church at Home, acting through the Society, transfers, with its blessing, certain persons to the bishops overseas. There is dedication here, but no commission.

Yet the Society maintains the keenest interest in all whom it helps to support in the work abroad. It endeavours to watch over them with love and to secure for them happy "conditions of service." We all know that soul and body must alike be fed, if Christ's work is to be done; that most men and all women can never live alone; that spiritual helps and privileges must be secured to all who serve, if they are to maintain the proper standard of life and self-consecration. The Society feels itself bound to draw the attention of the bishop to any worker, whom it assists, who is not happy in his (or her) work. But the Society never attempts to administer work, leaving this, as is right, to the bishop. Above all, when the worker returns on furlough from the work overseas, tired and often overwrought and in need of refreshment, the Society, while still regarding the missionary as under obedience to the bishop abroad, gives the warmest and most loving welcome, and endeavours to the utmost of its powers to supply the need of bodily and spiritual refreshment. Thus the Society regards itself as the "Home" of those whom it assists abroad: it has multitudes of children, but has no society-workers.

What, then, are the Church's needs? Priests, and ever more priests. Workers and additional workers, with the means for their support. For the most part, young priests are needed; and the response in 1919 has been small, and that for two reasons: first, owing to the fact that few men were ordained between 1914 and 1919, and so there is a great shortage of young priests in the Church at home; and secondly, so many have done war work and now want to settle in England. Yet the call is insistent: "Send us more priests! Our staffs are depleted."

There is also the need of doctors (both men and women), nursing sisters, qualified teachers, trained evangelistic workers. Let all who desire to dedicate their lives to Christ for work overseas, write to the Candidates' Department.

Perhaps our greatest need at the moment is a "short-termed hostel" in London for women, where those who offer for work can be asked to go for a few months to test their vocation. We should need £3,000 to start such an institution: thus far we have received donations of £500, of £50, of £40, and two promises of £50.

III. European Chaplaincies.

To the Candidates' Department is attached, for convenience' sake, the secretariat of the European Chaplaincies. The Society, through its committees, appoints the chaplains of those places where it holds the patronage, and makes grants in aid of those chaplaincies which are not yet self-supporting. The duty of administrating and directing this important work rests with the Bishop of Gibraltar and the Bishop for Central and Northern Europe respectively, since it is they, or their commissaries, who grant the licences to the Chaplains under them; and the Society, in this branch of its work, works in the closest possible touch with them. It is bound to select with the most scrupulous care the clergy whom it presents to these chaplaincies, since an inhabitant of Europe is apt to judge of our Church at Home from the men whom we send to represent us abroad.

IV. EDUCATIONAL WORK.

I. Conferences, Schools.

(a) The Summer School was revived and held in Hastings and St. Leonards in July. It was attended by about four hundred persons, and was felt by all to have been most stimulating. The Lord Bishop of Edinburgh most kindly conducted the half-hour's Bible Study, taking as his subject the visions of judgment and triumph in the closing chapters of Revelation. Father Conran, S.S.J.E., conducted the daily intercessions and also read a valuable paper on the training of missionary workers. Canon Cook, rural dean, and the clergy and laity of the district, gave us a very warm welcome. The Bishop of Buckingham and Canon C. H. Robinson were among our special speakers. In the evenings, addresses were given by missionaries; and Africa, India, and the Far East were studied in turn. The most striking event of the School was the quarter of an hour spent in silent prayer that "God would double the income of our Society within two years"—a thing which we firmly believe

He will enable us to accomplish. There was also the collection of £100, as the gift of the Summer School, to defray the expenses of a Conference of Missionaries on furlough.

(b) The Blackheath Conference.—A Retreat Conference for missionaries and their wives, and for unmarried missionaries (men and women) was held at St. Christopher's College, Blackheath, from September 17 to 22, by kind invitation of Rev. W. Hume Campbell, the Warden. About fifty attended. The mornings were spent partly in devotion, when addresses on "vocation" were given by the Right Rev. the Secretary, and partly in Conference. The afternoons (in part) and the evenings also were devoted to conferences. It had been hoped that Sir Michael Sadler would lecture on "Educational Problems in India," but he was compelled to cancel his promise. Miss G. A. Gollock came and spoke on the "Training of Missionaries" for work abroad. The Conferences were extraordinarily interesting and the speaking on a very high level. A most delightful spirit of fellowship was felt, which intensified as the Conference drew to a close. The spiritual links which bind the Society at home to its workers abroad were made close and real. The Conference was organised by Miss Bewley and the C.W.W. Department. We hope it will be an annual event.

II. Junior Work.

We hope that the importance of this branch of our work is realised by all our readers. It is training the men and women of days to come in zeal for Christ's service overseas. We cannot be sufficiently grateful to the Chairman of its committee, the Lord Bishop of Dover, for the time and interest which he gives to it.

Its activities are many. It encourages the formation of groups of boys and girls as "King's Messengers" and provides for them a syllabus of missionary study. It arranges visits to schools by invitation of head-masters or mistresses: there is an enormous field open to us in this alone. It also publishes a monthly paper and books suitable to young people.

The changes of staff in 1919 have been noted elsewhere. We are glad to record a marked increase in the contributions to S.P.G. from our junior branches: these have risen year by year. In 1919 the sum of £11,034 was contributed—an increase of £1,200 over that of 1918, and of £2,800 over that of 1917. This is satisfactory, and shows that the junior work throughout the country is full of vigour. The senior members of K.M.—that is, those who are confirmed—are realising their responsibilities toward the work overseas. There is, however, a decrease in the number of K.M. candidates who did the examination on the Annual Syllabus. One hundred and thirty-four new branches were started during the year. St. Clement's, Great Ilford, won the Challenge Shield for best work done in the examination last year; St. John's at Hackney leads in London. At the Annual Girls' Schools' Festival in December, the number of schools represented was 118. There is also an "Old Girls' Guild" with a membership of 40.

It is most important that missionary knowledge should be taught in day-schools; the number of dioceses where this is done is increasing. A great deal more is being done in Sunday-schools, which are linking themselves definitely to the work of the Society to an increasing extent. No Church Sunday-school should neglect the subject.

Some lantern lectures have been specially written for children during the year and have proved very popular. The sales of literature in the Junior Department considerably exceeded the estimate and have reached a total of £587. The syllabus for 1918 was "The Glory of the Nations" (M. M. Higham), and was much liked. A useful leaflet, "Brothers of all the World," was issued for young communicants.

III. Educational and Literary Departments.

(a) The Educational (Study) Department.—Miss Pulling reports that Study Conferences have been held in nine dioceses. A training school for S.P.G. speakers was held in the Diocese of Manchester, and a course of instruction in London on "story telling" led on to three Story Recitals with Music, which were given in the diocese on behalf of the Peace Thank-offering. Suggestions for leaders and outline programmes for study circles have been drawn up; the text-books for the year were "Social Problems and the East" and "Social Ideals in India." Two correspondence circles have been held and a large number of parochial study circles started. A successful "Week" for the study of social and missionary problems was held at Whitelands College, Chelsea, during the Christmas holidays (January, 1920): 40 resident and 20 day-students attended. Devotional addresses were given by Canon S. Blofield, Principal of Saltley Training College.

(b) The Library.—During 1919, 3,920 books have been borrowed, an increase of 520 as compared with the previous year. We have added 800 books, and are rendering more complete our "Language Section." A new catalogue has been published costing one shilling. We are always ready to advise students what to read. Before this year is over we shall have considerably extended the space devoted to the library, which, owing to the White Kennett Trust Fund, should one day have the most complete collection of missionary literature in the world.

(c) The List of our Periodicals, and the newer books which we have published, will be found on another page. We venture to urge that our literature should be still more widely read. We issued during the year, 442,250 copies of the Mission Field; 47,850 of the Home Workers' Gazette; 21,600 of The East and The West; 1,500,000 of The Church Abroad (1*s.* 6*d.* the hundred); 473,500 King's Messenger. The total issue of our periodicals amounted to 2,513,200—truly a great output.

It is clear that Canon Robinson and his Editorial Department are fully employed. The handling of this great quantity of literature has thrown a great burden upon our Publication Department under Mr. Galton. It is interesting to add that between December 1 and March 1, no less than 21,000 missionary boxes, of various sorts, were issued.

(d) The Braille Department of S.P.G.—There has been no increase in the circulation of our braille literature for the blind, but it meets a very real need. Both the Intercession Paper and The Mission Field are warmly appreciated. A fortnightly letter to the members has been much appreciated, and the number of braille writers has increased. The sales of books at Christmas and Easter were above the average. We have proof of real prayerful help given to our work overseas by the blind.

IV. Exhibitions.

This department is very seriously understaffed; it has also deficient accommodation and insufficient stock. The matter is one which should be taken in hand without delay. The basement of the newly built front of S.P.G. House will soon be at our disposal for warehousing our properties, for which we now hire a house in Hammersmith. We shall in this way secure sufficient space, and may hope for further development: we shall thus bring this important work into union with the central office—a very great advantage.

This work also brings us into touch with other missions and widens our outlook. In view of the fact that some misapprehension exists on the subject, it is emphatically stated that we are glad and thankful to co-operate with C.M.S. and other Missionary Societies of our Church in exhibitions. We wish that more frequent opportunities were afforded us.

Rev. W. H. Barnes reports that the year 1919 was one of great activity.

There have been 54 exhibitions held, several on the largest scale we have yet attempted. Twelve of these were joint exhibitions, the rest S.P.G. There were also 19 small exhibits of curios.

Sets of tableaux and pageant dresses sent out numbered 361; of these, 58 were in connection with exhibitions. But the Department was obliged to decline 250 applications, although 50 more sets were issued than in 1918. Of the sets sent out, 159, or rather more than half, were used by K.M. Branches. A small number of single dresses were also issued to applicants.

The receipts from hire decreased from £147 in 1917 and £150 in 1918 to £87. This drop in receipts is due of course to the new regulations adopted by the Society, under which hire is not charged when the proceeds are certified to be for the General Fund or the Peace Thankoffering. Such proceeds in 1919 are returned as £3,672, but all exhibitions are not included in this figure.

Gifts were received from Bishop Montgomery, the Rev. J. Kettlewell, the Rev. H. S. Monypenny, the Rev. J. F. Wilson, Miss Attree, Miss Ballard, Miss Blencowe, Miss P. Debenham, Miss Pedder, Miss Powell, Miss Ramsbotham, and anonymously.

Miss Benham has continued her valuable help in typing tableaux directions, and our band of voluntary needlewomen has rendered its usual helpful service.

It may be as well to add that we have thirty-four exhibitions on hand for 1920, seven for 1921, and one for 1922, and that, with the exception of about a dozen, all these are S.P.G. exhibitions, some of them on a very large scale.

An attempt is being made to gather together a new band of honorary workers to act as instructors of stewards for S.P.G. and joint exhibitions. Volunteers are greatly needed for this most important educational work.

In conclusion, I must say that the Staff at Hammersmith, in which, on account of his frequent absences, the Secretary can hardly be included, has worked nobly under almost impossible conditions to supply the demands made by the Church, and has waited patiently for better times, which one sincerely hopes will not now be delayed.

V. OBITUARY.

Those who have passed away during the year include Colonel Drake Brockman, who was for many years honorary consulting physician to the Society; Sir R. M. Penrose-Fitzgerald; Sir Henry Trotter; Dr. Charles Hamilton, Archbishop of Ottawa; and Bishop Stretch of Newcastle, Australia, Vice-Presidents.

The Rev. Hugh Kenney, who was a missionary in Rangoon, and afterwards for many years a much valued organising secretary of the Society. The Rev. F. C. Cleaver, formerly a missionary in the Gold Coast (Accra), served as a chaplain, died on his way out to Mesopotamia to take up fresh duties. The Rev. N. W. R. Cosserat, a missionary in Assam. The Rev. Canon W. H. R. Bevan, who died at Blechingley in October, had laboured for fifty years as a missionary in South Africa, and for forty-three years had been in charge of the Bechuana Mission, which he himself had started at Phokoane (diocese of Kimberley and Kuruman). The Rev. John Toshimachi Imai, who died in Tokyo, in September, was one of the first two Japanese to be ordained priests. He was ordained in 1888, and in 1911 became the first principal of the Central Theological College in Tokyo.

On the women's side we have lost some faithful supporters. Mrs. O'Connor, the wife of our revered late Acting-Secretary of the Medical Missions Department, the Rev. W. O'Connor, who died suddenly on May 20. Mrs. O'Connor was for many years with her husband in Chota Nagpur. Mrs. Trollope, the mother of Bishop Trollope and a benefactor of C.W.W. Miss Elise Astley, Hon. Secretary of the South African Railway Mission, and formerly a member of C.W.W. Mrs. Robertson, wife of the Rev. Dr. J. A. Robertson, whom many will remember as Secretary of the Medical Mission Department.

VI. THE PEACE THANKOFFERING.

I. What are we asking for?

We are asking that the sum received by our General Fund (£195,000) be maintained, and that in addition to this, £250,000 be given to our Peace Thankoffering. Included in this last sum is an appeal for £100,000 "Emergency Fund." We ask our friends to allow us to allocate this amount of their Peace Thankofferings towards meeting our loss on exchange, &c., by marking them "Emergency." We want this first £100,000 of Peace Thankoffering to be paid in, if possible, before July.

This will need all our energies and will entail a vast amount of self-sacrifice; but we are persuaded that it can be done. The matter is urgent to the last degree; for Bishops are writing to ask us if they are to reduce their staff. We voted all our available resources in grants for 1920; and we are now told most truly that these grants are insufficient. At this moment of writing, a grant of £100 to China, when changed into local currency, means £35; a £100 to India means about £50. We must have that first £100,000 of our Peace Thankoffering as soon as possible: if not, missionaries will be recalled and native workers turned off. Will the Church at home permit this to be done? We do not believe it. It is reasonable to devote the first fruits of our Thankoffering to stave off disaster. None the less, money can be earmarked by its donors for other special purposes.

II. What we have done.

We have received thus far about £29,000, of which sum £25,900 was contributed in 1919. This, however, by no means represents the work which has been done, since many of the parishes, which are collecting for the Thankoffering, have deferred payment until their quota is completed. The fund does not close till December 31, 1920.

To enable dioceses, deaneries, and parishes to ascertain what their share in this fund might reasonably be expected to be, a scheme of apportionment was prepared in the form of a leaflet (H.O. 22), which also contains many suggestions of methods for collecting the money. These suggestions have been very well received, and have been adopted by diocesan committees. Other methods of collecting the sum were outlined in the Home Workers' Gazette (November 1919), such as "Sales," "Exhibitions," and the collection and sale of "Treasure." In Ireland, £875 has, so far, been collected: Winchester is reported as aiming at £13,000 by June: Truro will have its gift ready by St. Peter's Day: Exeter and Carlisle by late autumn. Our booklet and picture, "A New Epiphany," have had a good sale. The following literature is available:—

VII. FINANCIAL REPORT.

We "thank God" and "take courage." Once again, in 1919, has been demonstrated God's loving care for His Church. "Not unto us, O Lord, not unto us, but unto Thy name give glory."

Our total income has touched £290,000, or £28,700 in excess of the sum received in 1918, which itself constituted a record. It is with particular joy that we notice that in this total is included £195,600 for our "General Fund," which is the mainstay of our work, as against £176,600 in 1918. The increase, from subscriptions, donations, and collections, of £11,300, as compared with 1918, is more gratifying. The "Medical Missions Fund" improved the position gained in 1918, if allowance is made for the special appeal for the "Mosse Memorial Hospital." "Special Funds" amounted to £80,600, of which £25,900 was received for the Peace Thankoffering.

What should be our income for 1920? If we are asked what we actually need in order to maintain existing work at its present level, we are bound, after close consideration of this subject, to reply, "Not less than an additional £100,000 for our General Fund drawn from the Peace Thankoffering, thus raising it from £195,000 to £295,000, and that without prejudice to our Medical and other Special Funds.

We must make our need known, and ask God to open the hearts of all who can help us. The sum is a large one, but it is by no means beyond the power of our Church and of those parishes which support us to give this money. Let us believe that Christ needs it for His work! It will surely come. Double effort all round is wanted.

THE SOCIETY'S MAGAZINES.

NOTE.—It will save the Society considerable expense and labour if all magazines (except "The Church Abroad") are ordered through a local bookseller. Postage is eliminated in most cases, and subscribers are enabled to alter their number as circumstances may require and render their payments monthly, instead of paying in advance to the end of the year.

"THE MISSION FIELD." "The Mission Field" is the official organ of the Society and appears in a cover of attractive design, which frames a different picture each month. Its size is crown 4to (9¾ in. × 7½ in.) with double columns, and the text is well illustrated. The price of "The Mission Field" is 1d. a copy. Obtainable from all booksellers, it is also supplied direct from S.P.G. as follows:

Twelve or more copies a month are sent carriage paid, if payment is made in advance to the end of the year. Postage is charged on smaller quantities and single copies. Rates on application.

The bound volume 2/6, by post 3/-. Covers for binding, 1/6, by post 1/9. The cover design is new and greatly enhances the appearance of the volume.

An Edition for the Blind. The Society issues monthly an edition of this magazine printed in Braille type. It is obtainable direct from the office only. Annual subscription, 2/-, post free, payable in advance.

AUDITORS' REPORT.

AUDITORS' REPORT.—We have examined the Accounts of the Society for the Propagation of the Gospel in Foreign Parts for the Year ending December 31st, 1919, and having seen the vouchers for the various payments we certify that the Society had, at the close of the Financial Year, an available Cash Balance of Seven Hundred and Sixty Three Pounds, Eighteen Shillings and Eleven Pence (£763 18*s.* 11*d.*) on account of the General and Working Funds; Sixty Eight Thousand Five Hundred and Eighty Six Pounds, Nine Shillings and Eleven Pence (£68,586. 9*s.* 11*d.*) on account of the Special Funds. We also find that the Receipts and Payments on account of the General and Special Funds, and the Balances held on account of the Special Funds, do agree with the entries in the Ledgers. We also certify that the Society had the following Investments.

PRIDEAUX, FRERE, BROWN, & CO.,

PRESIDENTS { HIS GRACE THE ARCHBISHOP OF CANTERBURY.
HIS GRACE THE ARCHBISHOP OF YORK.
TREASURER: REV. T. A. SEDGWICK.

This Society augments the stipends of Curates who have been more than 15 years in Holy Orders and are still in full active work.

Of the 7,000 Curates very many have been ordained more than 15 years, and this number is annually increasing.

It is the only Society in England that directly increases the Stipends of Curates of long standing.

The War has seriously strained our resources. £1,000 required immediately to avert diminution in the number of grants.

The Church is multiplying Curates three times as rapidly as she is multiplying Benefices.

Nearly £6,500 was voted last year in Grants.

The average stipend of those receiving Grants does not exceed £3 a week.

Church Collections, Subscriptions, and Donations thankfully received.

A PRAYER.—O most blessed Saviour, Who of Thy great goodness hast given unto us the light of Thy Gospel, make our hearts truly grateful for all Thy gifts, and earnestly desirous that others may alike enjoy the same. Fill us with zeal for Thy glory in the salvation of the unbelieving and ignorant. Permit us to aid in this holy work, that our prayers and alms may come up for a memorial before the Father, and be accepted in His sight. Amen.

HOME MISSIONS

OF THE CHURCH.

THE ADDITIONAL CURATES SOCIETY exists to help poor parishes to maintain the assistant Clergy they require and could not support without money assistance from outside their own borders. In helping poor parishes the Society touches the slums in the centre of large cities, the poorer suburbs outside the cities, and also the mining and other industrial towns and villages.

The Society's CENTRAL FUND is open to receive contributions specially given to help in maintaining Clergy in the more hardly-pressed Dioceses. The Fund also continues the support which the Society gives for Clergy in the Staffordshire Potteries, the Middlesbrough Ironworks, and the South Yorkshire Coal Field; it also provides Missioners for new industrial districts in many parts.

MORE THAN 700 CURATES

are now receiving augmented stipends through the help of higher grants from the A.C.S. In most cases the Society is giving one half of the augmentation, the other half being provided by the local effort of the Parish or Diocese.

GIFTS for the purpose will be welcomed. Cheques should be crossed "Coutts for acc. of Additional Curates Society."

Extract from the Bishop's preface: "This little book is both revolutionary and important. I commend it to the careful attention of all who are interested in missionary policy.
